The two sisters were honored for their interest in fire control at the hospital. Sister Nazarita is also an honorary fireman at South Bend, Ind. Jacksonville firemen learned a new technique on hospital evacuation from Sister Nazarita and are now teaching the method in nursing homes and other hospitals in the Jacksonville area.

U.S. Warplanes Hit Red Bridge, Convoy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Air Force jets struck at highways in Communist North Viet Nam Saturday, wrecking a bridge and a military convoy, an American spokesman reported.

Aground, four U.S. Marines on patrol were wounded slightly in a skirmish with Viet Cong guerrillas south of Da Nang and South Vietnamese forces suffered two setbacks from Communist attacks.

The daylight raids followed a night attack by six U.S. Air Force B57 Canberra bombers which blasted a truck convoy and an anti-aircraft battery in North Viet Nam, a military spokesman said.

Supported by 25 jet fighters, 35 F105s struck a bridge on strategic Route 1 near Vinh, 135 miles south of Hanoi, and pilots reported it was destroyed. They also hit docking ramps at a ferry crossing near Vinh.

Six other Canberra bombers attacked Routes 7, 8 and 12 in North Viet Nam and reported knocking out a convoy. There was no indication that any planes were lost.

A correspondent for the Soviet news agency Tass in a dispatch from Vinh said about five

LBJ Grants Tax Relief To Military Men In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson granted income tax relief Saturday to American military personnel serving in the Viet Nam theater of operations.

Johnson announced an executive order, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1964, exempting enlisted personnel from all federal income tax on pay received during assignment in South Viet Nam or during service on naval vessels within 100 miles of the Vietnamese coast.

Commissioned officers may exempt from taxation $200 per month of their service pay while on such assignments.

As of now, the exemptions apply to approximately 32,000 Army, Air Force and Marine Corps personnel in South Viet Nam and several thousand Navy and Marine personnel aboard naval ships.

Johnson's action, taken under the federal revenue code, was the first such order since the Korean War in the early 1950s. In effect, it recognizes the Viet

India Charges Pakistan Troops Invaded Border

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—India charged Saturday that a Pakistani army force of at least 3,000 men supported by tanks thrust almost seven miles into India's western territory near the Arabian Sea before being repulsed.

It was the second major Pakistani attack reported by India this month along the disputed frontier between India's Rann of Kutch, a largely uninhabited swampy area, and Pakistan's Sind State.

An official spokesman said "You are very near the truth if you call it war. It is very, very serious."

The Indian spokesman gave this account of the fighting: Skirmishing began Friday and Pakistani guns opened up Saturday morning on Indian points known as Sardar Pos, Vigokot and Chhabat. A Pakistani infantry brigade attacked almost seven miles southward to "Point 84" near a north-south road between Diplo, Pakistan, and Khavda, India.

A small Indian force held Point 84 and "according to reports so far received the attack has been repulsed."

Indian guns had replied to the shelling at the other three points.

The spokesman refused to discuss casualties but said three Pakistani tanks were destroyed.

Owen Madden, Prohibition Era Gangster, Dies

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Owen Vincent (Oweny) Madden, 73, who survived two decades of a blazing underworld career and retired here as a quiet man known for his gifts to charity, died Saturday.

A lung disease ended the life of the prohibition era gangster, dubbed "The Clay Pigeon" by New York police because he was shot so often.

There was little vestige in Madden's life here of the days of terror he knew in the Hell's Kitchen district of New York City in the 1920s and 1930s.

He shunned publicity and declined to talk about his life.

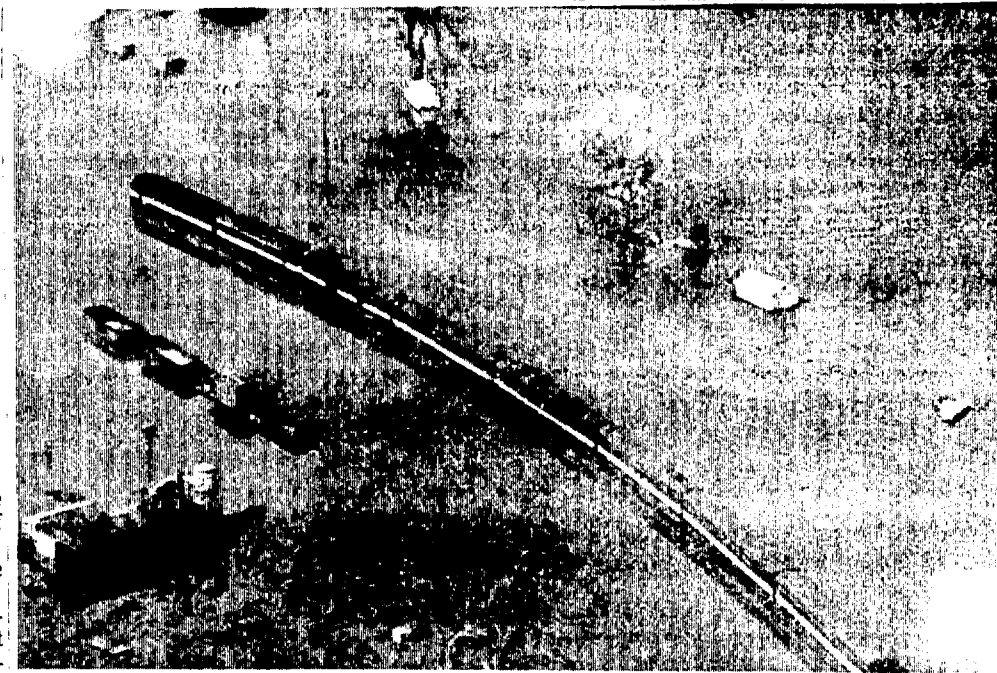

Madden began his criminal career shortly after arriving in New York from his birthplace of Leeds, England, in 1902. He was first arrested on a burglary charge, at the age of 19, but was acquitted.

Between 1910 and 1934 Madden was accused of six killings, but he served only two prison terms—one for parole violation and one for "instigating" the killing of Little Patsy Doyle.

He bossed the Gopher Gang as a beer baron and once used a fleet of ships to bring liquor from England, Scotland and Cuba into New York.

Madden's car was once driven by movie star George Raft, his widow relates, and he is said to have launched Mae West on her fabulous career by sponsoring her in the Broadway production of "Pretty Lil'."

Raft visited frequently here, where Madden and his wife lived peacefully as next-door neighbors to Police Chief John Erney.

U.S. May Use Small Nuclear Weapons In Asia If Necessary

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is retaining the option of using small nuclear weapons in Communist North Viet Nam if this becomes an eventual necessity—even though there is no prospect of their use under existing circumstances.

This government, it has been learned, is prepared to use whatever weapons are considered essential to achieve its objective of ending Red aggression against South Viet Nam.

In this connection, it is understood also that:

—As the war stands, U.S. forces have far from exhausted the conventional, nonnuclear arms that can be brought to bear effectively.

—Basic U.S. strategy does not assume there are any sanctuaries for the Communist opponents: Either a physical sanctuary in Red China's borders or another kind of sanctuary in the assurance that the United States would forebear using nuclear weapons.

—The government approaches the idea of using nuclear weapons with the realization that possible gains must be balanced against conceivable losses.

—There is a strong awareness of the high risks involved in bringing atomic arms into play—the chief risk being that of possible involvement of the Soviet Union and escalation to a nuclear exchange between the big powers.

On the gains-vs.-losses scale, it is considered inconceivable under present circumstances that the use of nuclear weapons in Viet Nam would yield a net gain for the United States.

Carnival Ride Collapses, Kills Two Children

DETROIT (AP)—Two children were killed and three injured in the collapse of a section of a carnival thrill-ride before horrified spectators in suburban Taylor Township's shopping center Saturday.

The five were riding in a bucket on the whirling steel arm of a "Flying Comet."

As a crowd of shoppers watched helplessly, the arm suddenly fell and the children were dragged around the center until the apparatus could be stopped, police said.

Sharon Hawks, 14, and her brother, Grant, 12, were dead on arrival at Wayne County General Hospital.

Their three companions in the bucket — Susan, 10, and Nancy Mathis, 8, sisters, and Bonnie Mathis, 8, their cousin — were reported critically injured.

Police Lt. Carl Lang said a cable clamp attached to the arm apparently loosened, permitting the arm to fall.

The headline of the Democratic publication of the Democratic National Committee, proclaims: "Legislative landmarks of the first 100 days: President lauds Congress."

The Republican Congressional Committee's newsletter sees it another way: "Congress' first 100 days: 'More taxes' . . . and more federal control."

The Republicans illustrated their piece with what they called "The Great Society coat of arms," a crossed carrot and stick, rampant on a corn-fed ham, with the motto "Carrotum aut clubbum, creatus consensus populi."

Which freely translates, according to the GOP, as "Carrot them or club them, but create us a public consensus."

The Democrats' story quotes President Johnson as praising the 89th Congress for achieving in its initial 100 days "a record of major accomplishments without equal or close parallel in the present era."

Johnson may have been thinking about the famous first 100 days of Franklin D. Roosevelt's depression administration. If he wasn't the Republicans were.

The GOP newsletter said: "Where F.D.R. used the shotgun approach on the problems of his day, firing at many targets in hopes of hitting some, President Johnson and his congress-

Tornadoes Hit Several Farm Areas

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—Heavy rains, high winds and pounding waves heightened danger in the Mississippi River flood zone Saturday.

Several tornadoes smashed into areas in western and central Illinois early in the day while downpours slowed men and machines fighting against record-high waters.

A twister tore apart a farm home near Woodhull, Ill., about 30 miles south of Rock Island, injuring Gerald Nelson, his wife and three children. The winds damaged buildings in nearby Alledo and Reynolds and on a farm near Streator.

A tornado lifted the roof off the Rural Electrification Administration quarters in Brooklyn, Iowa. Hurricane-force winds raked the south section of Des Moines. A driver was injured when four semitrailer trucks were blown off Interstate 80 south of Brooklyn.

The twisters were faint echoes of the swarm of funnel clouds that swept across the Midwest on Palm Sunday, killing 248 persons and starting two terrible weeks of assaults by wind and water.

But the latest winds whipped waves against flood barriers, and the rains sent runoff water down from bluffs to the shore lines below.

President Johnson, heeding the pleas of Gov. Otto Kerner, declared Illinois a major disaster area today, paving the way for federal assistance to tornado- and flood-stricken areas.

The federal government will complete surveys of the affected counties as soon as possible and then allocate the money needed for relief.

The rain soaked scores of flood fighters in Dubuque, Iowa. The Mississippi rose beyond the 26-foot level there and headed for a peak of 27 feet Monday.

"I am confident we have this thing licked," said Mayor Robert Horgan. "We are going to win."

The city was battling to protect residential sections. Cold waters have invaded the business district and scores of establishments have been closed.

Almost two inches of rain splattered the Rock Island area in six hours.

"The situation is very critical," said City Manager Raymond P. Botch. "It's the worst it has been to date."

Rain hit Rock Island again at midday. Botch issued a warning to downtown merchants in the city of 51,000, saying the dike protecting their stores could not hold more than eight or 10 hours more.

The earthen dike, three miles long, safeguards the central and western sections of the city. If it bursts, one to four feet of water will flow through almost all of the downtown area. The eastern third of the community is on higher ground.

The waterworks in nearby East Moline stopped functioning shortly before noon.

The mud virtually immobilized heavy earth-moving equipment.

The Weather Bureau predicted the Mississippi will crest at 22.5 feet Wednesday in the Quad Cities area — Rock Island, Moline and East Moline, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa.

Descending order — machinery, food products, electrical equipment, transportation equipment, chemicals, fabricated metal products, instruments of various kinds, primary metals such as steel and aluminum, rubber, plastic, stone, clay, petroleum and coal products.

Systematic selling — of ideas as well as goods — has played a large part.

Secretary E. Edgerton Hart of the Illinois Manufacturers Association said it has been preaching a trade gospel along this line: If your plant is running under capacity and your home market is saturated, you can get into the export field without any additional capital spending.

Sixteen company presidents rode the circuit of European fairs last year under the aegis of the Chicago Association of Commerce. A similar party of 38 businessmen is scheduled to leave for the Orient Sunday.

Gov. Otto Kerner led a trade mission to Europe in 1963. He plans to head an expedition to the Far East in November.

The Illinois Board of Economic Development, a state agency set up in 1961 to help improve business in the state, reported one of every seven Illinois manufacturers has some overseas trade, and one of every five acres of harvested crops has been shipped abroad.

"The future," Hart commented, "looks very good."

Did You Turn Clock Up An Hour?

By The Associated Press

Sunday is the morning you are supposed to have remembered to set your clock an hour ahead in most areas that will observe Daylight Saving Time during the summer.

Officially, the time changed at 2 a.m.

This year Daylight Saving Time is in effect throughout 19 states and the District of Columbia and in parts of 11 other states. Twenty states — mostly in the South and South-west — are standing by Standard Time.

Newcomers to Daylight Saving Time are Colorado and Yatesville, Pa. Yatesville, population 472, was the only Pennsylvania community that stayed on Standard Time last year.

Farmers, who are early risers, are traditional opponents of Daylight Saving Time. Their cows and chickens pay no attention to it.

Variations in Daylight Saving Time, from state to state, sometimes from community to community, and differing starting and terminal dates, produce an annual headache for people who make out timetables.

The Transportation Association of America has formed a Committee for Time Uniformity to lobby for some consistent observance. It doesn't care whether the time is Daylight or Standard and if it only would be the same everywhere.

Proponents of Daylight Time — mostly in populous areas — argue that it provides an extra hour of evening sunshine, permitting more recreation; that it tends to reduce twilight traffic accidents and saves on lighting costs.

States observing Daylight Time on a statewide basis are California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

States partially observing Daylight Time are Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, Ohio, Oregon, Virginia and Michigan.

Iowa adopted Daylight Time on a statewide basis for the first time this year, but for a comparatively short period — Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Wisconsin started Daylight Time Sunday as usual and will have an extra month of it. It will go back to Standard Time at the end of October instead of the usual closing date at the end of September.

Benjamin Franklin, an innovator of many things, proposed to the French people as far back as 1784 that Daylight Saving Time would save tallow and provide for time in the sunlight. He got nowhere with the idea, but it began to take hold in the United States around 1916.

Plan Special Events During Library Week

National Library Week will be observed April 25-May 1 at the Jacksonville Public Library. The slogan this year, "Open Your Future - Read" appears around the picture of a key in bright orange-colored posters and free-for-distribution book-marks.

Encourages Readers
Each April, nationally and in some 5,000 communities throughout the country, Library Week is both the climax and starting point of many year-around activities that spur Americans to read more and to accept the responsibility for making reading opportunities more available to others. It is sponsored by the National Committee, Inc., an independent, non-profit, educational organization of outstanding citizens. In cooperation with the American Library Association, for the purpose of reminding people that reading and libraries are truly means toward the full pursuit of life, liberty and happiness; that they are keys to cultural and economic opportunity, essential for the development of an informed, creative citizenry capable of making the many decisions that confront society today.

Fines Discontinued
One popular feature of National Library Week in the local library, besides the many book displays, has the theme, "Save Your Money." Fines will be cancelled for all overdue books returned from April 26-May 1, and fines accumulated before April 26 will be reduced 50% if paid during Library Week. The purpose is to encourage users to return long overdue books. Many times books are kept because the fines have mounted and people who have such books will be doing the library and other users a service to return them this week, without having to pay a penalty. Fines are charged as reminders to return books in order that the library can give better service to more readers.

To Show Films
Another activity of the week will be the showing of films from the Mississippi Valley Film Cooperative of which the library is a member. The new Method Book Bindery is sharing its film projector and screen, as well as several films for use in the library. Films in sound and color will be shown Thursday, April 29 at 7 p.m., and for the children's story hour Saturday, May 1 at 10 a.m. People are welcome to visit the library, especially during this week to see the book displays and film programs.

EXTENSION GROUP TO MEET MONDAY
TALLULA - The Tallula Homemakers' Extension evening unit will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. William Smith.

The major lesson, "Getting Better Acquainted With Electricity and Using it Safely," will be given by Mrs. Wanda Williams and the minor lesson, "Program Planning" will be presented by Mrs. Neva Dierks.

FEDDERS OVERCOMES

Sun Load

The extra 20 degrees of heat air conditioners must battle out in the sun on every warm summer day.

Engineered... manufactured... tested to cool effectively when it's 115 degrees out in sun where air conditioners operate.

Fedders builds its air conditioners to cool when it's 20° hotter than the temperature at which BTU's are measured to compensate for Sun Load—the "forgotten factor" in air conditioning. In competitive tests of air conditioners with similar BTU ratings, most models turned off at 115° to prevent permanent damage from overheating. The Fedders model tested pulled indoor temperatures down, held them down in the test which duplicated actual Sun Load conditions.

Truck Mishap Slows Traffic At Beardstown

BEARDSTOWN — One of the long trailer outfits being used in transporting large plates of steel from river barges to the Trinity Steel plant buckled in the middle under a heavy load about 9 a.m. Friday at the north end of State street.

A fork lift was brought from the plant to the scene of the trouble. The load was transferred to another outfit and normal traffic resumed.

plates from barges, over the seawall and onto the long trailer trucks.

Trinity makes tanks for liquid fuel at the former Delta tank company plant near 15th and Wall streets, and apparently is operating at full production here.

On Flood Duty
Arnold Leistritz, 1409 Monroe street, head of the Beardstown office of the U.S. Army Engineer corps, has been called to Minnesota for "flood duty." He reports Monday.

Mr. Leistritz succeeded John Gano as head of the local office when Mr. Gano retired several weeks ago.

Bradburys Mark Golden Wedding Date In Perry

PERRY, Ill. — Winter still held the little village of Perry in its grip on February 1, 1915 but in one country home all was gaiety and happiness for it was the day of the wedding of Margaret Hoerlein and Harris Bradbury, who will observe the golden anniversary of that day Sunday, May 2 from 2 to 5 in the party room of the Perry Restaurant.

Mrs. Bradbury served more than 30 years as Perry postmaster, having been appointed Dec. 1, 1933.

Mr. Bradbury received his license as an embalmer in 1917 and has been a funeral director at Perry since then.

Both are past matrons and past patrons of the Eastern Star and Mr. Bradbury served wedding of their daughter, Miss Margaret to Harris Bradbury in each with his wife and once with his daughters, Mrs. Joe Brooks and Mrs. C. L. Kirkson.

He is past master of the Masonic Lodge and received his 50 year pin as a Mason last year.

The two are active members of the Presbyterian church at Perry and take active part in all community affairs.

During Mrs. Bradbury's career as postmaster she and her husband attended many conventions and other meetings of the Postmaster Organization, including the national convention in Hawaii in 1963.

The Perry Citizen carried the following account of the wedding:

Bradbury-Hoerlein Wedding
Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hoerlein in Perry occurred the wedding of their daughter, Miss Margaret to Harris Bradbury, the presence of 50 guests.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the contracting parties took their places at the bay window of the south parlor under a canopy of pink and green.

The ring ceremony was used, Rev. McLaughlin, pastor of the Christian church, and an intimate friend of the groom, officiating. The wedding march was rendered by Miss Browning. At the conclusion of the ceremony a delicious course luncheon was served in the dining room by the Misses Smith, Alice Hudd and Laverne Meredith.

The Hoerlein home beautifully decorated with white and white ribbon.

The bride wore a gown of chiffon over silk with tiny rose-bud fastenings. She carried a white prayer book, book mark of lilies of the valley and white ribbon.

"The groom is a young of sterling worth, energetic honorable in all his deal these qualities together with jovial disposition and friendly nature giving assurance of business success for him in the future."

The newlyweds will be home after Feb. 15 in Witham home in Perry. Many friends extend their good wishes for a life of piness and prosperity.

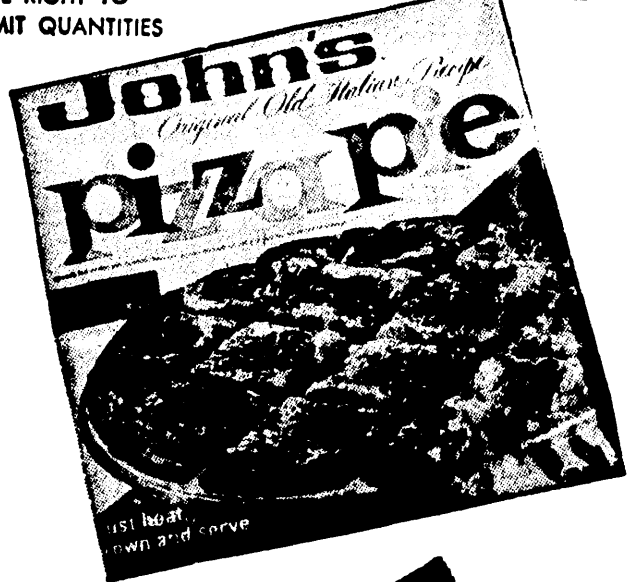

That's the way it was 4, 1915.

FIRE DEPARTMENT 125 YEARS OLD

Men And Equipment Change Over Years, Legends Linger On

One hundred and twenty-five years ago Friday 90 men, "some of the best citizens of the place" signed a charter organizing the Jacksonville volunteer fire department.

From a hand-drawn horse and ladder wagon, that frequently had problems arriving at the fire the same time as the pumper, the fire department of 1965 has progressed to radio equipped, fully mechanized engines housed at the same location.

When the vols were organized their equipment consisted of a double-decked hand engine. Eames history of Morgan county and Jacksonville, published in 1885, recalled, "It was a very heavy machine" and required a number of hands to work it.

"The same engine, with some improvements, is still used when (the) occasion requires. In addition to the old 'Union' engine, the company had several hundred feet of hose, buckets, ladders, axes and other necessary equipment."

Prior to the 1860s fires were fought by the "bucket brigade" and it was not until then that a hand pumper was available to the "fire ladders."

Cisterns were constructed and were the source of water supply. They were fed from run-off water from surrounding buildings, and were located within a block of the square at four intersections.

Complete Water Works
When the city water works was completed in 1875, sixty-six hydrants were available to the firemen and their hose wagons. Although there are no historical records surrounding the development of the department, old timers agree that there were two "fire houses."

A hand-drawn pumper was located in a building, which also housed the Jas. B. Seaver blacksmith shop on West Morgan, and now the site of a parking lot owned by the Jacksonville Savings and Loan association.

The hose and ladder wagon was situated on East Court street between the locations of Winnie's cafe and the AMVET club. It was also the site of as many as ten domino games at a time.

When horses were purchased, they were stabled at the rear of each building. Fire department facilities often suffered severely in the days of childish political wrangling between local politicians on the council, who often would keep the same feud running for a year.

With each side refusing to give-in, requests from the fire department went unheeded. Mountebanks Bend

But when the Strawn's Opera House fire of June 27, 1887 destroyed the handsome building and three other new structures on the north side of Morgan street west of South Main the mountebanks were quick to pay heed to the public bark.

Before the turn of the century, a future fire chief, who as a small lad enjoyed special privileges with the fire ladders, remembered the department boasted two Silsby pumps, one Metropolitan engine, a hose wagon made by the Chicago Fire Extinguisher company and a hook and ladder wagon manufactured by the Seagrave ladder company.

The Strawn's fire brought the public outcry that quickly turned into agitation for a "modern" steam pumper.

But even though the department bristled with some of the finest equipment of the times, there were occasions a fire run ran into more than one hitch.

When hose became worn, and aldermen fussed and feuded over trivialities, firemen were often left short of the necessary footage.

Then there was the night when a palatial three-story brick residence, known as the Woodman home, caught fire on Routh street.

The alarm sounded and the pumper took off up North Main street and the hose and ladder wagon rolled off toward the westend. Eventually they both found their way back to the double-decked hand engine. Eames history of Morgan county and Jacksonville, published in 1885, recalled, "It was a very heavy machine" and required a number of hands to work it.

When they arrived at the blazing home, they were somewhat horrified to discover they were 114 feet short of hose to reach from the cistern to the flames.

Soon afterward the aldermen appropriated the funds necessary for the purchase of additional fire hose.

In 1891, the city fathers picked the site of the Thompson and Springer barn for the location of the new city hall.

That was after a disastrous fire destroyed the barn and 63 horses perished the night of March 29, 1889. The lively boy who was a sleep in the barn, was awakened by his dog, and was able to escape the blaze, but his faithful pup was never seen again.

The fire was so intense, the next day residents of Murrayville came to town to see what had caused the sky to light up over Jacksonville the night before.

Following the fire, the location was used as a feed lot until the time construction began on the present city hall.

When the fire house was completed, it contained stables for six draft horses along the north wall, and room for the hook and ladder, hose wagon and steam pumps.

Today, the area where the Clydesdales were stabled is still able to be seen. A concrete slab at the rear of the first floor marks the area where the stables began and ran to the north wall.

If one looks close enough, marks on the ceiling where harness rings were occasionally hoisted too high while being removed from the stout animals, can be seen.

When the steam pumper was not in action, a hot water line was required to be attached to the boiler at all times to keep the water in the cylinder hot. This would allow firemen precious moments in waiting for the water to heat, to gain power to begin the pumps when the engine reached a fire.

Plumbing Shop On Wheels
There were, however, often lapses in memory, such as on the night of a good blaze on Park street.

Upon their haste to leave the station, one of the fire ladders slipped and failed to detach the fitting from the hot water pipe on the boiler to the basement boiler.

Someone later recalled, the fire apparatus looked like a plumbing shop trailing off down the street. Needless to say, the water in the boiler was a bit cold.

Mechanized equipment had a rather shaky start in the city. Files of the DAILY JOURNAL relate, "The triple combination motor hose wagons, pumps and chemical engines have been purchased for the Jacksonville fire department. The new equipment reached the city yesterday and was unloaded under the direction of Mr. Miller, representative of the American LaFrance company."

That was Saturday. However, Monday night at the council meeting, aldermen were concerned because the city did not have sufficient funds to finance the purchase of the two four cylinder trucks, each costing $5,000 apiece.

The problem was ended when two solvent citizens stepped forth and underwrote the purchase of the equipment.

During the years since 1840, the system of providing manpower required to stop a fire. New equipment has provided new tests of the firemen, although the job remains the same, that of protecting several million dollars of property in the downtown business district and the homes of 25,000 residents.

JACKSONVILLE FIRES HAVE BEEN COSTLY

Some of the largest fires in Jacksonville, in damages, have been the Strawn Opera House the night of June 27, 1887 and the Thompson and Springer barn fire of March 29, 1889, which killed 63 horses. The barn, and the same area was burned out in 1875.

A peculiar start to a fire occurred July 3, 1923 when some unknown resident shot a skyrocket from the square and the firecracker took a nosedive and went thru a window on the third floor of the building formerly occupied by W. T. Grant store into a room filled with mattresses.

December 18, 1923, Cherry's livery stable burned down, and damaged seven other pieces of property, three owned by George Ferreira.

New Year's Eve, in 1945, at 9:20 p.m. an alarm was sounded at the W. T. Grant store. The interior of the building was destroyed. The Kresge store and the Piggly Wiggly store were damaged. The estimated damage was $75,000.

As the equipment and manpower has changed through the years, so has the job of the fireman. He is required to be a man of many talents, not only one required to stop a fire. New equipment has provided new tests of the firemen, although the job remains the same, that of protecting several million dollars of property in the downtown business district and the homes of 25,000 residents.

WEST MORGAN PUMPER STATION—Behind the double doors at the right in the picture was located the fire department's pumper adjacent to the Jas. B. Seaver blacksmith shop to the west. The buildings were located on the site of a parking lot, now owned by Dr. A. B. Applebee. The hose and ladder wagon station was on East Court street, between the sites of Winnie's cafe and the AMVET club. It was not uncommon for the pumper to go one direction and the hose and ladder wagon the other. Below is the blacksmith shop interior.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week made faltering progress but the pace of trading continued brisk. Historic highs were posted by some of the market averages.

The closely watched Dow Jones industrial average made a net gain of 4.50 to end the week at a record closing high of 916.41.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index closed at a record 88.88 but The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 5.33 after making a historic closing peak of 339.7 on Monday.

The trading week began auspiciously after the long Easter weekend which was accompanied by some bullish news, including records for industrial production and personal income in March.

Weekly steel production was reported equal to the previous record. Housing starts in March were higher than in February.

Still, the market ran into some unsettling factors in the course of the trading week. Over-all progress was slight.

Counting issues traded, the market rose, for 1,542 issues 757 rose and 617 fell.

The week's volume was 29,677,510 compared with 25,195,680 for the four-day trading week previous, shortened by the Good Friday holiday.

General Motors continued to make historic highs as investors were hopeful that directors on May 3rd would take general dividend action.

The hullabaloo caused by the suit against Texas Gulf Sulphur brought by the Securities & Exchange Commission on the alleged grounds of insider stock transactions linked with its rich mineral discovery in Ontario was another factor which gave pause to traders and investors.

Progress Report On Live Beef Cattle Market

CHICAGO (AP)—The world's first futures market in live beef cattle has completed its first cycle of operation with a trading volume officials of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange describe as "phenomenal."

"The volume has been beyond our greatest expectations," Everett B. Harris, exchange president, said Saturday. "The orderly nature of trading and the market's acceptance by various segments of the industry have been very gratifying."

Dealings in live cattle futures started on the exchange Nov. 30 and 10,328 separate contracts were traded before the April 21 deadline arrived, halting trading on steers scheduled for delivery in late April. Each contract represented the purchase or sale of 25,000 pounds of choice steers.

However, the individual purchases and sales offset each other to the extent that only 20 loads of cattle weighing 25,000 pounds each actually are being delivered in Chicago and Omaha in fulfillment of contracts.

When the cattle future market opened Nov. 30, the first contract for delivery in late April was for a $24.00 a hundredweight. A purchaser bought at that price and a short seller sold at that price. The short seller, at some later date, had to plan to deliver the steers or buy an equal futures contract to balance his commitment.

When trading in the April delivery contracts expired Tuesday, the price had advanced to $26.25-26.00.

The price rise thus worked in favor of an early buyer who maintained his long position and against an early short seller who did not balance his commitment until just before the contract expired.

Exchange officials describe the futures market as a hedge or a form of insurance that can protect cattle producers and feeders from unpredictable price drops.

State Legislature

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Democrats in the Illinois Legislature predict Republicans will return Monday to reapportionment conferences they abandoned as hopeless last week.

They also expect Gov. Otto Kerner to introduce his proposal for revenue reform, unless flood emergencies keep him from putting on finishing touches. He may suggest a referendum on whether Illinois should have an income tax.

The Senate Revenue Committee will vote on Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's proposals for doubling the cities' half cent sales tax. Advocates of higher minimums for police and firemen are waiting this decision.

A Senate Industrial Affairs Committee vote will decide the fate of Kerner's proposed $1.25 state minimum wage law.

Other controversial questions hanging on committee action include banning the death penalty, state income taxes, collective bargaining for state employees, and a referendum on holding a state constitutional convention.

Junior College Bill

A bipartisan plan for a nine-member board to administer a $20.5-million program for public junior colleges will be introduced. So will State School Supt. Ray Page's plan for denial of driver licenses to school dropouts not yet 18.

The House may send to Kerner a bill to raise salaries of lawmakers from $6,000 to $9,000 a year.

Efforts to make the Purple Martin the official state bird stands at passage stage in the House.

Gas Tax Boost

With it are more consequential bills, including the Kerner request for a three-cent boost in state gasoline taxes.

Remap Dispute

On behalf of reapportionment, a 10-member conference committee met a fifth time last week.

Its work ended in confusion after the five Republican members said agreement could not be reached with the five Democrats.

Democrats refused to agree that agreement was impossible and continued to meet.

A second conference committee cannot be formed until the first committee files a majority report that the committee wishes to disband.

The disagreement is over boundary lines. Republicans refuse to accept a Democratic insistence on district lines which would embrace Chicago and Cook County suburban territory within the same district.

U.S. MAY USE NUCLEAR WEAPONS IF NECESSARY

Among other things, if U.S. planes were to drop nuclear weapons on North Vietnamese targets, it was said, the resulting radioactive fallout would drift down into South Viet Nam, killing the innocent and friendly there.

There is no chance that nuclear weapons, even those of a tactical battlefield nature, would be employed against the Red guerrillas infesting South Viet Nam.

Although officials refuse to discuss the circumstances under which nuclear weapons might be unlimbered, there is a strong belief this decision would be confronted by the Communist Chinese came into the Vietnam war directly, particularly with major ground forces.

The daily U.S. bombings in North Viet Nam are said to have sown confusion in the Red bloc over how to respond, and to have set up irritations between the feuding Russians and Chinese.

The Democratic publication soft-pedaled partisanship. It noted that Johnson praised members of both parties and said Congress' record "reflects the will of the American majority at this moment in our national history; that we can get on with the job of meeting the needs of the 20th century agenda without allowing politics or partisanship to stand in the way."

The Republicans complained that maybe there wasn't enough standing in the way — that some bills went through without enough public hearings and debate.

Clan Ties For 2nd Greenville Takes Mac Invitational

Greenville College amassed a total of 45 points Saturday afternoon to top a field of 11 entrants in the 5th Annual MacMurray College Invitational Track Meet. The hosting Highlanders tied for runner-up honors with Monmouth, the defending champions, at 39.

Junior speedster Ron Orr paced the clan effort with wins at both the quarter and half mile distances, while Dennis Beard, a Mason City native, captured a first in the javelin competition. Orr pulled away from a touch field in the 440 setting a new meet and track record at 2:03.5 in the 880. Beard's toss of 176'8" and Orr's 440 mark set new meet and track records.

Doug Carlson of Monmouth was the only other dual winner of the afternoon as he posted victories in both distance events, the one and two mile runs. In the latter event, Carlson was pushed all the way by promising Clan frosh Dennis Mueller who finished six seconds back at 10:08.

Other Mac point totalers included a second in the 120 high hurdles by Harry Matheny, a third by defending champion Jim Hargrave in the 100, a 220 third and fourth by Dave Bucher and Rich Pincusky, and a third in the mile by Jim McGinnis.

SMITH SPARKS PRETZELS
NEW BERLIN—New Berlin's Don Smith won three events, one a new meet record Friday in the Sangamon County freshman track meet, in a meet held at New Berlin.

Smith won the 100-yard dash, the broad jump and the high jump. His broad jump of 18'4" was a meet record. He also ran on the Pretzels' 440-yard relay squad.

Illopolis won the meet with 47 points. New Berlin garnered 35 1/2 points in the meet.

Minnesota pitchers last season turned in only four shutouts, least number for any American League team in 1964.

Hockey Hawks Are Faced With Do-Or-Die Game

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks again are faced with a must win situation when they take on the Montreal Canadiens in Chicago Stadium Sunday night.

"Sure we have to win," said Coach Billy Reay. "If they take a game on our home ice then they could wind up the series in Montreal Tuesday night."

Reay, however, was confident the Hawks could square the best-of-7 series.

Montreal won the first two games on its ice 3-2 and 2-0 and the Hawks climbed back into contention with a 3-1 triumph in Chicago Thursday night.

A victory Sunday for the Hawks almost certainly will send the series to an ultimate seven games with games in Chicago next Thursday and finale in Montreal May 1.

The Hawks apparently are back at full strength with the return of defenseman Pierre Pilote and winger Kenny Wharram, both of whom played key roles in Thursday's victory. Wharram, with a shoulder injury, received sulfide treatments and responded with brilliant efforts. Both are expected to play Sunday.

The use of the compound, technically known as diomethosulfide, as a treatment for athletes was unusual. Heretofore, it had been used mainly in the treatment of horses.

Both Wharram and Pilote missed the first two games in Montreal in which the Hawks were completely outplayed. The turnaround came in Chicago after they received the sulfide treatments.

Montreal Coach Tom Blake was so impressed with the effect of the compound, which was developed by the University of Oregon, that he told his trainer to use it on injured Canadian Dave Balon's shoulder.

Earlier in the season, Reay admitted, the Hawks used the compound on Bobby Hull's knees "but I think we didn't use enough of it and Bobby never responded to treatment."

Thursday's victory had the Hawks hoping for a repeat of their semifinal series against Detroit, the National Hockey League champions.

Ron Orr crosses the finish line a stride in front for one of his two victories in the 5th annual MacMurray Invitational Saturday afternoon. Orr also won the 440-yard dash as the host Clan tied for second in the 11-team field.

Mascoutah Romps Past Routt Twice

Mascoutah pounded out 25 hits, including ten for extra bases, Saturday, and rolled to a doubleheader triumph over Routt, 11-3 and 10-3, at Nichols Park.

The visiting Indians, coached by former Waverly mentor Woody Derickson, led all the way in the first outing by big margins, but were pushed by the Rockets in the nightcap. Leading by only 4-3 in the seventh, Mascoutah pushed across six more in the final inning to ice the twin win.

Mascoutah scored three in the initial frame of the opener, then had a pair of four-run frames, the fourth and seventh, to win going away.

Routt stayed close in the second game behind the hurling of Kevin Hunter, before Mascoutah again unloaded in the seventh inning.

The best Routt could do in the opener was a single run in the first, on singles by Dennis Bennett and John Levins, a fielder's choice, and two in the sixth, on singles by Mike Routt got back into contention in the bottom of the frame when Levins singled and Fitzpatrick doubled him home. Two more runs came in the sixth on singles by Phil Schickedanz and Levins, and a double by Bennett, to make it a 4-3 contest.

Four Mascoutah hits, two for doubles, a pair of walks and an error opened the door for six big deciding runs in the visitors' half of the seventh.

Thomas' Homer Boosts Bosox Past Orioles 7-5

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lee Thomas slammed a three-run homer, his fourth hit of the game, into the right field bleachers in the 12th inning and powered the Boston Red Sox to a 7-5 victory over Baltimore Saturday.

Thomas' game-winning shot off Stu Miller followed a lead-off double by Frank Malone, his fourth hit, and an intentional walk to Tony Conigliaro.

Dick Radatz got the victory with six innings of one-hit relief pitching. The lone hit off Radatz was Jackie Brandt's leadoff homer in the bottom of the 12th.

The Orioles had tied the score on John Orsino's seventh inning homer. The leadoff homer finished Boston starter Earl Wilson, who was relieved by Radatz.

Met Rally Again Tops Giants, 7-6

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pinch hitter Danny Napoleon slammed a bases-loaded triple with two out in the ninth inning that brought the New York Mets to their second straight come-from-behind victory over San Francisco, 7-6 Saturday.

The Mets, who overcame a 2-6 deficit to defeat the Giants 9-2 in 11 innings Friday, trailed San Francisco 6-4 going into the ninth inning.

Charlie Smith beat out a bunt to get things started, and one out later, Chris Connizzo reached base on an error by reliever Bob Shaw. Pinch hitter Warren Spahn grounded out. Then Shaw issued Johnny Lewis, an intentional walk filling the bases.

Napoleon then lined one to right field just over Jesus Alou's glove.

JHS Cops Nightcap For Split Of Two

Jacksonville High came back to score an 8-6 triumph behind John Dean's four-hit pitching in the nightcap, after defending state baseball champion Springfield Griffin bombed the Crimsons in the opener, 11-5, in a twinbill held Saturday afternoon at the JHS athletic field.

Shabby fielding spelled early defeat in the first game, as Griffin ran up an 11-1 lead in the fifth inning and led in the fourth to wrap the opening game up early. The heavy-hitting Cyclones got the hits at crucial points, and taking advantage of numerous JHS miscues in the field, jumped to an 11-1 lead in the fifth.

The second contest saw the Jacks score three times in the first and twice more in the third to provide Dean with the room to work. Dean held the visiting Cyclones to three scattered singles through the first six innings, but ran into trouble in a four-run sixth, caused mainly by a pair of walks and three JHS bloopers.

Jacksonville jumped off to a 3-0 lead their first time up in the night cap. Creston Whitaker walked, Tom Woods walked after two were out, and Ron Coleman blasted a triple. Coleman scored when the Cyclone pitcher bobbled a grounder.

Two more runs came in the third when Larry Welch and Woods led off with singles, advanced on a fielder's choice, and scored on Danny Brooks' single.

Jacks Keep In Front
A double by Dennis Wegehoff added a single tally in the fourth. The eventual winning run came in the fifth when Coleman singled, stole second, and two infield grounders moved Coleman across.

The final tally came in the sixth when Whitaker started it with a single, stole second and third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Wegehoff.

The only trouble Dean had after a single run in the third on only one hit, again caused by three free passes, came in the sixth. Griffin pushed four runs across to pull within one. A 7th frame triple by Glenn Macius after another walk produced Griffin's final tally.

1ST MILESTONE
RESEDA, Calif. — (NEA) — Famed Illinois A. C. miler Joie Ray, eight times National AAU Champion and member of two Olympic teams, celebrated his birthday this month by running the mile in 7 1/2 minutes. He is 71.

MacMurray's John Wittlieb is tagged out at the plate by Iowa Wesleyan's Tom Anna. Wittlieb tried to score second on a single by Don Linton. The Highlanders swept both games of a twinbill from the Tigers.

Very Rare New Breed

NEW YORK (NEA) — Metomania, a psychic phenomenon that has always been suspect as an ersatz cult, shows symptoms this year of being a true neurotic derivative.

The ineptitude of Marv Throneberry never struck me as real Metomania. It was too masochistic, and contrived, because, after all, the staid New York Yankees once gave Marv $50,000 on the premise he was a ballplayer.

What the New York Mets show in 1965 is a young sect that is screwball in both allegory and fact.

There is, for instance, the young pitcher named Gary Kroll, an expatriate from the Phillies with the emaciated look of Nature Boy, or a leftover from a Cecil B. DeMille biblical epic. He gets his long blond tresses cut once every six months — never when he pitches in Venezuela. For breakfast, he mixes himself a protein concoction of cottage cheese, raw hamburger, honey and corn. He can also pitch, as he proved by beating the San Francisco Giants in his first starting assignment for the Mets.

Jim Bethke is the only 18-year-old "stopper" in baseball. At least, that's the way the Mets have used him in this young season. He smoothed out his nerves by riding with his dad in the engine cab on the Missouri-Pacific run from Kansas City to Denver.

Also on the pitching staff is Frank (Tug) McGraw, who does everything right-handed except pitch. That includes the exercise of a pair of shears and clippers on the scalps of his teammates which has earned him the nickname of "The Barber."

His first start in organized baseball last year was a seven-inning no-hitter for Cocoa in the Florida Rookie League.

Kevin Collins is an 18-year-old infielder, probably the first rookie who ever had his big league debut postponed by a shoulder operation. When Casey Stengel listed him to start the other day, he couldn't lift his arm. It wasn't traumatic. The doctor discovered a ruptured muscle.

The expected super-star of the future is Cleon Jones, another Met original. He throws left, but bats right. That's because when he was a kid in Alabama, the pitchers wouldn't throw to him unless he got to bat like everybody else.

With him in the outfield is a muscular Pole with a Chinese grandfather. That's Ron Swoboda, a powerful 20-year-old who prompted the Met publicity staff to boast at the end of the first week of the season that he was 11 games ahead of Maris' pace and 5 games ahead of Ruth — he'd hit two home runs. Ron's Polish grandmother was widowed and went to work in a Chinese restaurant, then married a coworker.

Manager Stengel, approached by the Yankees last year but allowed two in an April 1 appearance against New York, had a shoutout for seven innings.

Rose And Berst Pitch Mac To Double Victory

Righthanders Randy Rose and Dave Berst teamed up Saturday afternoon to twirl Mac to a double win over Iowa Wesleyan College, 6-1 and 3-2. Both hurlers went the distance, each allowing three hits and one earned run. John Wittlieb opened Berst's win in the opener with a two-run double, while Tom Zurkammer tripled home two in the final as Rose gained the triumph.

The Highlanders started the sun-shiny afternoon by jumping on Iowa starter Bill Martin for four runs in the first frame. The fast-balling lefty gave up singles to Richie Nicholls and Tom Zurkammer, followed by walks to Gay and Parsons, forcing in a Mac tally. Wittlieb then drove Martin's next offering to the wall in right center, clearing the bases and giving the Clan a 4-0 lead.

Berst Shuts The Door
Wesleyan broke the scoring ice in the third, cashing in on a Highlander miscue with men on second and third. After the error Berst settled down and promptly set down the last 13 batters in order.

Churchill Downs Saturday with the probable winner as much a question mark as any time in the previous 90 renewals of the 1 1/4-mile classic for 3-year-olds.

As many as 12 are likely to parade before the 100,000 fans as the strains of My Old Kentucky Home waft over the historic Downs at 5:45 p.m. EST. And it is no trouble at all to find a talking point for at least nine of them.

Heading into the final feverish week of preparation, Bold Lad, the 1964 2-year-old champion from Mrs. H.C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable, and Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Lucky Debonair, winner of the Santa Anita Derby and the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland, are the favorites to pick up the major share of the $125,000-added purse.

The remaining members of the top echelon are Ogden Phipps' Dapper Dan, stablemate of Bold Lad; Isidor Brier's fleet Flag Raiser, winner of three stakes in New York including the 1 1/4 miles of the Wood Memorial; Maj. Albert Warner's Native Charger, winner of the Flamingo and Kentucky Derby; Louisiana Derby winner Dapper Delagato, owned by Mrs. Joe W. Brown, Cohen's Hall to All, a stretch runner that just missed in two rich stakes; Tom Rolfe, winner of the Chesapeake Stakes for Raymond Guest's Powhatan stable and Arkansas Derby winner Swift Ruler, Earl Allen's Hope.

Remainder Of Field
The remainder of the field will come from a group that includes the Darby Dan Farm's Bugler; Mrs. Mary Keim's Apple Cake and Perne L. Grissom's Carpenter's Rule.

Bold Lad, a tiring third in the Wood after easily beating older horses in his 1965 debut at Aqueduct, is scheduled to get an acute test in the one mile of the Derby Trial Tuesday. Bugler, who beat Lucky Debonair in a sprint at Keeneland, also is headed for the Trial.

Lucky Debonair wound up his hard work last Thursday with a one-half length triumph over Swift Ruler at the 1 1/4 miles of the Blue Grass.

Bold Lad, a big son of Bold Ruler, is the only one of the top 2-year-olds of 1964 still in line for the big prize.

Bill Hartack, with the finest Derby record of four winners and one second in six mounts, will be astride Bold Lad.

Brailio Baeza, who rode Bold Lad most of the time last year, had to give up the mount when trainer Jimmy Conway said he would send either Bugler or Country Friend or both after the Derby. Baeza is under contract to John Galbreath, owner of the Darby Dan Farm.

Hartack won last year with Northern Dancer and also took the 1957 running with Iron Liege, the 1960 renewal with Venetian Way and accounted for the 1962 renewal with Decidedly. A broken leg kept him off Tim Tam, the 1958 winner, and the honors went to Ismael Valenzuela, who'll be astride the stretch running Dapper Dan this time.

Willie Shoemaker and Baeza are the only other former winners in the field. Shoemaker, who will be on Lucky Debonair, won in 1955 with Swaps and in 1959 with Tommy Lee. Baeza, who will be on Bugler or Country Friend, won with Chateaugay in 1963.

Technology And TV Rocking Legislative Boat In Springfield

By DICK EMERY
Legislative Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD—In addition to the population explosion and the knowledge explosion, a third explosion—technology—is rocking education in Illinois, and when the dust clears, a statewide educational television system may emerge.

An educational television network (ETV) covering the entire state has been proposed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to be built over a four-year period and costing about $10 million.

The proposal came as a result of an extensive engineering study authorized by the 1963 Legislature.

Last December the School Problems Commission recommended that construction of the stations and the microwave network to connect them be phased over six years with a $3 million outlay during the 1965-67 biennium. Total cost over the three bienniums would be $19 million.

As a result, legislation to establish a statewide network introduced in the educational process for high efficiency in both operations and learning.

"Defeat of this legislation would put Illinois behind many other states using ETV such as South Carolina, Florida, Georgia and Texas," Dr. Schultz says.

"It would also put Illinois in a weakened position to participate in Federal matching programs to build ETV stations," he added.

In 1952, the FCC established 259 television channels (87 VHF and 172 UHF) exclusively for the use of schools, educational corporations, colleges and universities.

Illinois has three VHF assignments with stations at Chicago (WTTW), Urbana (WILL), and Carbondale (WSIU), and four UHF stations still unused. The three VHF stations already plan to expand.

The Chicago station, which delivers an ETV signal to half the population of Illinois, has authority to build a second station (WXXW) this fall. The operation at Urbana plans to expand its present coverage area this fall with increased power.

Gas-Powered Boom In Europe

A new economic and industrial boom may be in the offing for Europe, fueled — literally and figuratively — by natural gas.

In 1959, one of the world's largest gas fields was discovered off the coast of Holland. With good reason to hope that this is only a part of the riches that may lie beneath the North Sea, some 50 companies, under license from six nations bordering the sea, are searching for oil, as well as more gas.

Their efforts have now been given a new impetus under international law. A "Convention on the Continental Shelf," drawn up in 1958, has gone into effect with the ratification of the required number of signatory countries.

It gives to each coastal state exclusive rights to the seabed off its shore out to a depth of 200 meters (about 573 feet). No other nation can prospect within that limit. Beyond, the sea floor is open to anyone with ability to stake a claim and exploit it.

The convention applies only to the land under the sea, not to fishing rights within the water, navigation rights on the water or in the air above the water.

The undersea limit is not to be confused with the territorial limit, which is still a subject of confusion and controversy. Some countries claim their jurisdiction extends out to sea four miles, some six, others as far as nine or 12.

The United States observes a three-mile limit which, when it was adopted in 1793, was the range of shore-based cannon.

Gas and oil from the North Sea could have an impact on European politics almost as great as on its economy. A "Big Inch" from the coast of Holland to, say, the boot-top of Italy would cross many boundaries and hasten the political unification of the continent.

There could be other changes. With cheap and abundant gas, sweater-wrapped Britishers could come to know the blessings of American central heating. That in itself would be a revolution.

What Not To Do

The new Rayburn House Office Building presents a fine example of a situation that is almost intolerable and wholly irrevocable. For something like 100 million dollars (one has to speak in round figures, since the precise cost has never been disclosed) the House of Representatives has provided itself with an architectural monstrosity which one well known critic has described as quite possibly "the worst building for the most money in the history of the construction art."

This judgment, with which numerous other qualified persons have expressed general agreement, is not based merely on the building's quality as architecture. It not only is abysmally ugly and lacking in grace, but it also is poorly designed to provide congressional housing. Reportedly only 15 per cent of the building's space is taken up with the offices and hearing rooms that are its reason for being.

It is not likely that blame for all this will ever be fixed, or that if it were, it could be made to stick. In a sense, placing blame would be pointless; the structure is there, and will be used, and is not going to be torn down.

But this monumental blunder of planning and execution should serve as a warning against any such episodes in the future. The federal government should be a leader, not a destroyer, in the field of architectural excellence. The new Rayburn Building will stand for a long time as a prime example of what not to do.

Dear Ann:

Rebelliousness a Plea?

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a 19-year-old boy who announces to his parents that he is going to do just as he pleases. Then when they attempt to reason with him he sticks his fingers in his ears and says, "I can't hear a thing you are saying so you might as well save your breath."

My husband and I are beside ourselves. Our friends' children do not speak to their parents the way this boy talks to us. What is wrong with him anyway?

Please print this letter and your advice. We need help. —NOTHING SACRED IN SACRAMENTO

Dear Nothing Sacred: You need more help than I can provide. A 19-year-old who reacts to discipline in such an infantile (not to mention disrespectful) manner is beyond your reach—and mine, too.

He did not get out of hand overnight, and he cannot be changed overnight. I hope you will get professional help—for example the Y.M.C.A. offers an excellent counseling program. Your son does not want to be infantile and disrespectful. Often such rebelliousness is a plea to parents. Translated it means, "Please make me behave." But parents don't get the message.

Dear Ann Landers: My fiancée and I are planning a spring wedding. Sue's parents will be meeting my parents for the first time next month. Sue's parents are giving a party for my family and our closest friends.

I have been told that cocktails will be served at the party and that the father of the bride will toast us with champagne. My parents and several others who will be present do not approve of alcohol. I am afraid they will be ill at ease. Do I have the right to ask Sue's parents not to serve liquor at the party? —KNOTTY PROBLEM

Dear Knotty: No, you do not. I applaud your parents' position with respect to alcohol, but you should not attempt to force others to conform to their way of thinking.

If your fiancée does not know of your parents' views on alcohol, she should be told. She should pass the word to her parents. If they decide to serve liquor anyway, remain alone. I assume, of course, soft drinks will be available for those who want them.

Dear Ann Landers: Jim and I were separated several months ago but reconciled before the divorce became final. Recently I learned Jim is still seeing the girl he was dating during our separation. She is single, just fair looking, and about my age.

I phoned her and made a date to "talk." Our visit was most unsatisfactory. I asked her not to see Jim again unless he moved from our home. She said, "I will see Jim whenever I get the chance. If you can't hold your man it is your problem, not mine."

Jim begged me to be patient and made it clear that he does not want to move out of the house. He is a good father to his four children. I dread the stamped, self-addressed envelope of another agonizing lope.

period of separation. Now I find myself asking you the same question I have asked myself a dozen times this week. What should I do? —JO ANN

Dear Jo Ann: I wish you had written to me before you went visiting. I would have told you to stay home. A wife who asks the other woman to "lay off" degrades herself.

Now you must carry on as if you were the only female in the world. This means no checking, no third-degree, no accusations. Be pleasant, relaxed and fight fire with fire. Or, to put it bluntly, turn on the heat.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of our office. I am enclosing a letter to the newspaper enclosing a letter to the newspaper enclosing a letter to the newspaper.

MIGs Beware; U. S. Planes No Longer 'Sitting Ducks'

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Hanoi is using the same guerrilla tactics in the air as on the ground.

Instead of an all-out battle to break up a U.S. bombing attack, a few of the Red planes come from cover, pick off one or two of ours, then dart to safety.

This tactic, of course, is not unusual in air battles.

The necessary U.S. shifts to meet these tactics are clear: One—There will be additional drilling of pilots going on North Vietnam raids on "alertness in the air" and on MIG 15 and 17 characteristics. Some pilots have discounted the MIGs because of U.S. plane "superiority."

Two—There's need for powerful surveillance radar on the spot to catch hit-and-run attackers before they arrive. Ground-based radar in South Vietnam is too distant to be useful in these near-Hanoi northern raids.

One partial solution: Send EC-121 Warning Stars to Vietnam. This radar rocket version of the Super Constellation has a range of 6,500 miles, flies at 300 miles an hour and carries six tons of electronic equipment.

The EC-121s could circle over the ocean off North Vietnam or over Laos close to the North Vietnam border. They're highly vulnerable, so would require a great deal of protection themselves.

The ideal military solution to the hit-and-run problem would be to bomb the Hanoi airfields when parked full of MIGs.

If this strategy isn't O.K. for political reasons, a logical tactic would be to deploy McDonnell F-4C Phantoms near the Hanoi airfields (or other key fields) during all far-North bombing raids. When the EC-121 radar planes "sighted" MIGs taking off, the F-4Cs could hopefully catch these Red planes before they got very far. Otherwise, Air Force pilots say, it's difficult to stop hit-and-run raiding on cloudy, hazy days, especially when enemy fighters are controlled by efficient ground radar.

Three—There'll be more fighter protection for F-105 fighter-bombers when they're used as bombers. There's a strong feeling among some pilots for the F-4C.

The fighter protection will be better placed. In the future, for example, there'll be a protecting layer of fighters above any cloud formations that could provide enemy cover.

When the F-105s were hit, they were loaded with bombs and circling for their bombing runs at only 375 knots. They and their fighter protection were both below major cloud formations in which the MIGs hid.

Loaded with bombs, as the F-105s were on this mission, they're unwieldy against fighters. They can't count on jettisoning their bomb loads fast enough, to handle fighters diving on their tails out of a cloud bank.

If MIG 15s and 17s can't catch our fighter-bombers maneuvering slowly and low for a bombing run, even these obsolete planes can dive fast enough to be effective on hit-and-run raids.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Reed, the young lawyer of television's "The Defenders," is back in town now looking for movie roles.

"The Defenders" no longer is with us on television, thanks to those nebulous things called ratings.

"It was a great show with great ratings when we were on the Saturday nights," says Reed. "Then they moved us to Thursdays. We still had great shows but not so great ratings."

The last show was shot a week ago in New York and Reed was on a plane the next day for here. He worked here when he was spotted for the role of E.G. Marshall's son and law partner on the television series.

"When I was here before I did all the Western shows and once had the back of my head showing in 'Pal Joey' with Frank Sinatra."

Out "The Defenders" has made it a different story this time.

Many of the movie producers, he has found out, were fans of the series.

"I don't have to bring along pictures and a scrapbook anymore," says Reed.

During the last months of the show, Reed was also appearing in the hit Broadway show "Barefoot in the Park."

Marshall, a movie veteran, is going on the stage—in musicals, yet.

"E.G. is going to play the King Arthur role in 'Camelot' in Atlanta this summer. He wants to get his tonsils wet in musicals away from Broadway and then he's going to look for something on the big street."

"He figures if Richard Burton can sing 'Camelot,' so can he."

FINDING THE WAY

Have You an Identity?

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Identify yourself!" That's the command of the guard at the border of the country. It's the polite question of the passport officer. It's the querulous request of the banker who wonders about your check. It's the common question as a man gives his assurance of his reputation as well as of his existence.

A whole host of causes have indicated the need modern man has in finding this identification in something beyond his own situation. From civil rights to Peace Corps, from the gyrating Beatlemania to the dedicated scientist, men have identified themselves with a cause in which they can lose themselves.

The search for personhood is more than joining a group or wearing a name bracelet. It's more than a badge or an identity card.

It is the ability to become an organized, effective and creative person, one who has found himself not as a notorious person or a personality-cult or as a publicity seeker. That's why FINDING self is always LOSING self.

There are three simple stories in the Bible which ought to be retold in these difficult and exciting days.

There was a shepherd who noticed the loss of one sheep, so he hunted until he had found it and restored it to the flock. He gave identity to the sheep.

There was a woman who lost a coin—really a part of her dowry, as though she had lost the diamond from her engagement ring. She hunted in every dark corner until she found it and restored it to its rightful place. She gave it identity.

There was a father who waited for his wayward son despite that rascal's insistence on wasting his inheritance. Having lost all, the son came to himself and returned to be his father's servant. Arriving home, the father restored him to the family circle. He renewed the son's identity.

This is the primary importance of real religion. It is the winning of persons to the realization of that which they already are. The sheep was already a part of the flock, the son was already a member of the family. That had to be restored and recovered.

A casual look around any neighborhood can emphasize the number of persons who have either lost identity or are trying to deny it to others. In a world in which all too often impersonal, it is important to lose one's self in the right cause. The stakes are high. Some people manage to elude the question for all too long a time but ultimately there is the command: "Identify yourself." That person, she has really come to herself and restored it to the family of God and is free to live like it.

The Mature Parent

Who Owns the Toys?

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: The other mothers in our park's playground are giving my 3-year-old boy the impression that instead of owning his toys he must give them up to any child who wants them. He has a new tricycle. If one of the other children wants it, the mother's answer is always the same: "Wait a minute and Jeff will give you your turn." Am I wrong to resent this? When it is my Jeff who wants another child's toy, I say, "No, Billy is using it." But so far none of these mothers has taken my hint.

ANSWER: I wouldn't like it either. I don't know how right or wrong we are but I should resent it, too.

The real trouble is, I expect, that these women regard themselves as the owners of all children's belongings, including those of their own young ones. So their arrogance is not just directed at Jeff. To disguise their arbitrary disposal of his tricycle they use the phrase "wait for your turn" to make it sound fair and sporting. We can be pretty sure that they treat their own youngsters things the same way and find just as many noble excuses to justify control of their possessions.

As you seem to so clearly respect Jeff's property rights, I doubt that he's going to suffer much damage from association with these other mothers who don't. So the question is: Is it worth-while to attract their ill will to you and Jeff by challenging them?

I'm all for attracting ill will when the issue is important. But to challenge these bossy women just for the sake of expressing your disapproval of them may not be sensible. The companionship of their children is good for Jeff. Ask yourself what you will gain for Jeff by making a big deal of your disapproval. The answer is your business.

Therefore, putting away falsehood, let every one speak the truth with his neighbor, for we are members one of another. —Ephesians 4:25.

The strength of a country is the strength of its religious convictions. —Calvin Coolidge.

CONTINUE QUEST FOR APHID-RESISTANT CORN

Hundreds of inbred corn lines are being tested in USDA and land grant college greenhouses in an attempt to find a high-producing, aphid-resistant hybrid that will stop corn leaf aphids from spreading maize dwarf mosaic (MDM).

The new, dread disease was found in seven southern Illinois counties last year. It is believed spread entirely by aphids. Most of the 2,000 infected acres were in Alexander and Pulaski counties, with the disease cutting production from 20 to 80 percent.

The photo shows Entomologist W. H. Luckmann "caging" an aphid to a leaf. If the aphid dies or fails to reproduce young the plant is considered immune and will be used in various crosses in the search for a resistant variety.

On susceptible plants the aphid mature and produce dozens of young in five to six days. Aphids give birth to living young.

"On the basis of what we know about the disease now, it appears that no available insecticide—even systemic—could kill quickly enough to prevent aphids from spreading MDM," Luckmann says. "The aphid can land and begin sucking sap from a plant, and within those few seconds MDM inoculation can occur."

He said Illinois farmers can help scientists in the MDM control effort by reporting aphid infestations and suspicious-looking plants during the growing season this year.

"Any new information on the virus will help research work. Meanwhile, farmers in seriously affected areas should consult a reputable seedman about adapted varieties that carry some resistance or tolerance to MDM, and also carry on a thorough Johnson grass eradication campaign."

be two big problems," said Andrew.

"One problem involved holding in place the plastic that was used to cover the grain. The other problem was grain spoilage caused by condensation of moisture under the plastic covering."

The experiments proved these problems could be eliminated by using small electrically powered fans with the plastic covers.

Plastic, Electric Fan O.K. For Temporary Storage Of Corn

The flood of grain that annually hits elevators in the Corn Belt at harvest time may be eased somewhat in the near future by the use of a temporary plastic grain storage method being developed at the University of Illinois.

F. W. Andrew, associate professor of agricultural engineering, who developed the new storage method, said his studies showed the materials used cost about 3 1/2 cents per bushel.

The value of the grain increased 10 cents per bushel during temporary storage for 30 days. This price increase was enough to cover the cost of the materials, electricity and reloading of the grain. Half of the plastic can be used again, further reducing the cost.

Andrew explained that in 1963,

a 250-bushel truckload of 18-percent corn from his farm was placed on a 10-foot by 50-foot, 4 mil plastic. Another 10-foot by 50-foot strip was placed over the top.

Small Fan Utilized
The edges of the top sheet were tucked beneath the bottom sheet. A 75-watt suction fan was attached to the sheet of plastic at the end of the pile and was allowed to run continuously until the grain was removed two months later.

Andrew said, "This constant running of the fan held the upper sheet of plastic tight against the grain."

"Although moisture condensed on the top plastic strip, it was reabsorbed by the top layer of grain instead of running down to the bottom of the pile where it had accumulated and caused grain spoilage in previous tests."

He added that in further tests in 1964, 700 bushels of 19-percent shelled corn were piled on part of a 20-foot by 100-foot sheet of plastic and covered with the same material.

In addition, a neighbor stored about 300 bushels of corn under the same sheet of plastic.

Aeration Possible
"Another advantage of this method of temporary storage is the fact that the grain can be aerated by opening a small flap at the end opposite the fan in the top sheet of plastic to let in cold night air," he pointed out.

"Previous experiments with temporary plastic grain storage had shown us that there would

Haylage-Fed Steers Gain Best In Trial

Haylage-fed steers gained significantly faster than corn-silage-fed steers in a comprehensive University of Illinois study involving 70 animals.

The haylage-fed steers showed slight gain advantages over the corn-silage-fed steers during the first 112 days of the experiment (December 17 to April 7).

During the remainder of the trial (April 7 through July 14), the steers on haylage maintained their rate of gain, while gains for the silage-fed steers tended to drop.

"Corn silage freshness could not have been a factor in the drop in gains during the latter part of the trial," explained animal scientist J. E. Zimmerman. "All steers were receiving silage from an oxygen-free storage unit."

He said that feed required per pound of gain was slightly lower for haylage-fed steers than for silage-fed steers. As a result, haylage produced the cheaper gains.

Seven lots of steers were tested in the study. Four lots received corn silage throughout the trial, two lots received haylage throughout the trial and one lot was fed both silage and haylage during the first 112 days and only haylage for the remainder of the study.

"Feeding corn silage and haylage during the first 112 days produced slightly but not significantly lower gains than feeding only haylage," Zimmerman explained.

"Differences in dressing percentage between lots were small and not significant. However, the silage-fed steers produced carcasses that were significantly higher in both carcass quality grade and overall carcass grade than those of the haylage-fed steers."

"Differences in total retailable product were small, but tended to be slightly lower for the lots that received only haylage."

Gas-Powered Boom In Europe

A new economic and industrial boom may be in the offing for Europe, fueled — literally and figuratively — by natural gas.

In 1959, one of the world's largest gas fields was discovered off the coast of Holland. With good reason to hope that this is only a part of the riches that may lie beneath the North Sea, some 50 companies, under license from six nations bordering the sea, are searching for oil, as well as more gas.

Their efforts have now been given a new impetus under international law. A "Convention on the Continental Shelf," drawn up in 1958, has gone into effect with the ratification of the required number of signatory countries.

It gives to each coastal state exclusive rights to the seabed off its shore out to a depth of 200 meters (about 573 feet). No other nation can prospect within that limit. Beyond, the sea floor is open to anyone with ability to stake a claim and exploit it.

The convention applies only to the land under the sea, not to fishing rights within the water, navigation rights on the water or in the air above the water.

The undersea limit is not to be confused with the territorial limit, which is still a subject of confusion and controversy. Some countries claim their jurisdiction extends out to sea four miles, some six, others as far as nine or 12.

The United States observes a three-mile limit which, when it was adopted in 1793, was the range of shore-based cannon.

Gas and oil from the North Sea could have an impact on European politics almost as great as on its economy. A "Big Inch" from the coast of Holland to, say, the boot-top of Italy would cross many boundaries and hasten the political unification of the continent.

There could be other changes. With cheap and abundant gas, sweater-wrapped Britishers could come to know the blessings of American central heating. That in itself would be a revolution.

What Not To Do

The new Rayburn House Office Building presents a fine example of a situation that is almost intolerable and wholly irrevocable. For something like 100 million dollars (one has to speak in round figures, since the precise cost has never been disclosed) the House of Representatives has provided itself with an architectural monstrosity which one well known critic has described as quite possibly "the worst building for the most money in the history of the construction art."

This judgment, with which numerous other qualified persons have expressed general agreement, is not based merely on the building's quality as architecture. It not only is abysmally ugly and lacking in grace, but it also is poorly designed to provide congressional housing. Reportedly only 15 per cent of the building's space is taken up with the offices and hearing rooms that are its reason for being.

It is not likely that blame for all this will ever be fixed, or that if it were, it could be made to stick. In a sense, placing blame would be pointless; the structure is there, and will be used, and is not going to be torn down.

But this monumental blunder of planning and execution should serve as a warning against any such episodes in the future. The federal government should be a leader, not a destroyer, in the field of architectural excellence. The new Rayburn Building will stand for a long time as a prime example of what not to do.

Dear Ann:

Rebelliousness a Plea?

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a 19-year-old boy who announces to his parents that he is going to do just as he pleases. Then when they attempt to reason with him he sticks his fingers in his ears and says, "I can't hear a thing you are saying so you might as well save your breath."

My husband and I are beside ourselves. Our friends' children do not speak to their parents the way this boy talks to us. What is wrong with him anyway?

Please print this letter and your advice. We need help. —NOTHING SACRED IN SACRAMENTO

Dear Nothing Sacred: You need more help than I can provide. A 19-year-old who reacts to discipline in such an infantile (not to mention disrespectful) manner is beyond your reach—and mine, too.

He did not get out of hand overnight, and he cannot be changed overnight. I hope you will get professional help—for example the Y.M.C.A. offers an excellent counseling program. Your son does not want to be an infantile and disrespectful. Often such rebelliousness is a plea to parents. Translated it means, "Please make me behave." But parents don't get the message.

Dear Ann Landers: My fiancée and I are planning a spring wedding. Sue's parents will be meeting my parents for the first time next month. Sue's parents are giving a party for my family and our closest friends.

I have been told that cocktails will be served at the party and that the father of the bride will toast us with champagne. My parents and several others who will be present do not approve of alcohol. I am afraid they will be ill at ease. Do I have the right to ask Sue's parents not to serve liquor at the party? —KNOTTY PROBLEM

Dear Knotty: No, you do not. I applaud your parents' position with respect to alcohol, but you should not attempt to force others to conform to their way of thinking.

If your fiancée does not know of your parents' views on alcohol, she should be told. She should pass the word to her parents. If they decide to serve liquor anyway, remain abstemious, of course.

soft drinks will be available for those who want them.

Dear Ann Landers: Jim and I were separated several months ago but reconciled before the divorce became final. Recently I learned Jim is still seeing the girl he was dating during our separation. She is single, just fair looking, and about my age.

I phoned her and made a date to "talk." Our visit was most unsatisfactory. I asked her not to see Jim again unless he moved from our home. She said, "I will see Jim whenever I get the chance. If you can't hold your man it is your problem, not mine."

Jim begged me to be patient and made it clear that he does not want to move out of our house. He is a good father to our four children. I dread the thought of another agonizing love.

period of separation. Now I find myself asking you the same question I have asked myself a dozen times this week. What should I do? —JO ANN

Dear Jo Ann: I wish you had written to me before you went visiting. I would have told you to stay home. A wife who asks the other woman to "lay off" degrades herself.

Now you must carry on as if you were the only female in the world. This means no checking, no third-degree, no accusations. Be pleasant, relaxed and fight fire with fire. Or, to put it bluntly, turn on the heat.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of our office. Enclose a self-addressed envelope if you wish.

MIGs Beware; U. S. Planes No Longer 'Sitting Ducks'

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Hanoi is using the same guerrilla tactics in the air as on the ground.

Instead of an all-out battle to break up a U.S. bombing attack, a few of the Red planes come from cover, pick off one or two of ours, then dart to safety.

This tactic, of course, is not unusual in air battles.

The necessary U.S. shifts to meet these tactics are clear: One—There will be additional drilling of pilots going on North Viet Nam raids on "alertness" in the air; and on MIG 15 and 17 characteristics. Some pilots have discounted the MIGs because of U.S. plane "superiority."

Two—There's need for powerful surveillance radar on the spot to catch hit-and-run attackers before they arrive.

Ground-based radar in South Viet Nam is too distant to be useful in these near — Hanoi northern raids.

One partial solution: Send EC-121 Warning Stars to Viet Nam. This radar pocket version of the Super Constellation has a range of 6,500 miles, flies at 300 miles an hour and carries six tons of electronic equipment.

The EC-121s could circle over the ocean off North Viet Nam or over Laos close to the North Viet Nam border. They're highly vulnerable, so would require a great deal of protection themselves.

The ideal military solution to the hit-and-run problem would be to bomb the Hanoi airfields when parked full of MIGs.

If this strategy isn't O.K. for political reasons, a logical tactic would be to deploy McDonnell F-4C Phantoms near the Hanoi airfields (or other key fields) during all far — North bombing raids. When the EC-121 radar planes "sighted" MIGs taking off, the F-4Cs could hopefully catch these Red planes before they got very far. Otherwise, Air Force pilots say, it's difficult to stop hit-and-run raiding on cloudy, hazy days, especially when enemy fighters are controlled by efficient ground radar.

Three—There'll be more fighter protection for F-105 fighter-bombers when they're used as bombers. There's a strong feeling among some pilots for the F-4C.

The fighter protection will be better placed. In the future, for example, there'll be a protecting layer of fighters above any cloud formations that could provide enemy cover.

When the F-105s were hit, they were loaded with bombs and circling for their bombing runs at only 375 knots. They and their fighter protection were both below major cloud formations in which the MIGs hid.

Loaded with bombs, as the F-105s were on this mission, they're unwieldy against fighters. They can't count on jetting their bomb loads fast enough to handle fighters diving on their tails out of a cloud bank.

If MIG 15s and 17s can thus catch our fighter-bombers maneuvering slowly and low for a bombing run, even these obsolete planes can dive fast enough to be effective on hit-and-run raids.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON

AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Reed, the young lawyer of television's "The Defenders," is back in town now looking for movie roles.

"The Defenders" no longer is with us on television, thanks to those nebulous things called ratings.

"It was a great show with great ratings when we were on Saturday nights," says Reed. "Then they moved us to Thursdays. We still had great shows but not so great ratings."

The last show was shot a week ago in New York and Reed was on a plane the next day for here. He worked here when he was spotted for the role of E.G. Marshall's son and law partner on the television series.

"When I was here before I did all the Western shows and once had the back of my head showing in 'Pal Joey' with Frank Sinatra."

Out "The Defenders" has made it a different story this time.

Many of the movie producers, he has found out, were fans of the series.

"I don't have to bring along pictures and a scrapbook anymore," says Reed.

During the last months of the show, Reed was also appearing in the hit Broadway show "Barefoot in the Park."

Marshall, a movie veteran, is going on the stage—in musicals, yet.

"E.G. is going to play the King Arthur role in 'Camelot' in Atlanta this summer. He wants to get his tonsils wet in musicals away from Broadway and then he's going to look for something on the big street."

"He figures if Richard Burton can sing 'Camelot,' so can he."

FINDING THE WAY

Have You an Identity?

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Identify yourself!" That's the command of the guard at the border of the country. It's the polite question of the passport officer. It's the querulous request of the banker who wonders about your check. It's the common question as a man gives his assurance of his reputation as well as of his existence.

A whole host of causes have indicated the need modern man has in finding this identification in something beyond his own situation. From civil rights to Peace Corps, from the galling Beatlemaniac to the dedicated scientist, men have identified themselves with a cause in which they can lose themselves.

The search for personhood is more than joining a group or wearing a name bracelet. It's more than a badge or an identity card.

It is the ability to become an organized, effective and creative person, one who has found himself not as a notorious person or a personality-cult or as a publicity seeker. That's why FINDING self is always LOSING self.

There are three simple stories in the Bible which ought to be retold in these difficult and exciting days.

There was a shepherd who noticed the loss of one sheep, so he hunted until he had found it and restored it to the flock. He gave identity to the sheep.

There was a woman who lost a coin—really a part of her dowry, as though she had lost the diamond from her engagement ring. She hunted in every dark corner until she found it and restored it to its rightful place. She gave it identity.

There was a father who waited for his wayward son despite that rascal's insistence on wasting his inheritance. Having lost all, the son came to himself and returned to be his father's servant. Arriving home, the father restored him to the family circle. He renewed the son's identity.

This is the primary importance of real religion. It is the winning of persons to the realization of that which they already are. The sheep was already a part of the flock, the son was already a member of the family. That had to be re-stated and recovered.

A casual look around any neighborhood can emphasize the number of persons who have either lost identity or are trying to deny it to others. In a world which is all too often impersonal, it is important to lose one's self in the right cause. The stakes are high. Some people manage to elude the question for all too long a time but ultimately there is the command: "Identify yourself." That permanent ring has really come to himself who knows that he is a part of the familyhood of God and is free to live like it.

CONTINUE QUEST FOR APHID-RESISTANT CORN

Hundreds of giant corn lines are being tested in USDA and land grant college greenhouses in an attempt to find a high-producing, aphid-resistant hybrid that will stop corn leaf aphids from spreading maize dwarf mosaic (MDM).

The new, dread disease was found in seven southern Illinois counties last year. It is believed spread entirely by aphids. Most of the 2,000 infected acres were in Alexander and Pulaski county, with the disease cutting production from 20 to 80 percent.

The photo shows Entomologist W. H. Luckmann "caging" an aphid to a leaf. If the aphid dies or fails to reproduce young the plant is considered immune and will be used in various crosses in the search for a resistant variety.

On susceptible plants the aphid mature and produce dozens of young in five to six days. Aphids give birth to living young. "On the basis of what we know about the disease now, it appears that no available insecticide—even systemic—could kill quickly enough to prevent aphids from spreading MDM," Luckmann says. "The aphid can land and begin sucking sap from a plant, and within those few seconds MDM inoculation can occur."

He said Illinois farmers can help scientists in the MDM control effort by reporting aphid infestations and suspicious-looking plants during the growing season this year.

"Any new information on the virus will help research work. Meanwhile, farmers in seriously affected areas should consult a reputable seedsmen about adapted varieties that carry some resistance or tolerance to MDM, and also carry on a thorough Johnson grass eradication campaign."

Plastic, Electric Fan O.K. For Temporary Storage Of Corn

The flood of grain that annually hits elevators in the Corn Belt at harvest time may be eased somewhat in the near future by the use of a temporary plastic grain storage method being developed at the University of Illinois.

F. W. Andrew, associate professor of agricultural engineering, who developed the new storage method, said his studies showed the materials used cost about 3 1/2 cents per bushel.

The value of the grain increased 10 cents per bushel during temporary storage for 30 days. This price increase was enough to cover the cost of the materials, electricity and re-loading of the grain. Half of the plastic can be used again, further reducing the cost.

Andrew explained that in 1963

be two big problems," said Andrew.

"One problem involved holding in place the plastic that was used to cover the grain. The other problem was grain spoilage caused by condensation of moisture under the plastic covering."

The experiments proved these problems could be eliminated by using small electrically powered fans with the plastic covers.

WOULD EXTEND TRUCK INSPECTION DEADLINE

Farm Bureau is supporting a bill that would allow truckers, including farmers, outside of Cook County an extra two months in which to have their trucks safety inspected. Trucks must be inspected semiannually.

The months of April and October are now set by law as the time in which trucks must have trucks inspected. The proposed legislation would add the months of March and September. This would help farmers who are usually very busy on the farm during April and October.

SWINE ASSOCIATION TO MEET TUESDAY

MACOMB — The annual meeting of the Western Illinois Swine Testing association will be held on Tuesday, April 27, at the 4-H Center west of Macomb beginning at 7 p.m. with a pork chop barbecue dinner.

Annual reports of officers and directors will be given. Three directors will be elected for a term of three years each. Any other business that is properly presented will also be discussed and acted upon.

H. G. Russell, livestock extension specialist, University of Illinois, will be present to discuss future prospects for swine producers.

Haylage-Fed Steers Gain Best In Trial

Haylage-fed steers gained significantly faster than corn-silage-fed steers in a comprehensive University of Illinois study involving 70 animals.

The haylage-fed steers showed slight gain advantages over the corn-silage-fed steers during the first 112 days of the experiment (December 17 to April 7).

During the remainder of the trial (April 7 through July 14), the haylage-fed steers maintained their rate of gain, while the corn-silage-fed steers tended to drop.

"Corn silage freshness could not have been a factor in the drop in gains during the latter part of the trial," explained animal scientist J. E. Zimmerman. "All steers were receiving silage from an oxygen-free storage unit."

He said that feed required per pound of gain was slightly lower for haylage-fed steers than for silage-fed steers. As a result, haylage produced the cheaper gains.

Seven lots of steers were tested in the study. Four lots received corn silage throughout the trial, two lots received haylage throughout the trial and one lot was fed both silage and haylage during the first 112 days and only haylage for the remainder of the study.

A grain marketing official, L. C. Carter, Stuttgart, Arkansas, has been elected chairman of the Federal Farm Credit Board.

The 13-member Federal Farm Credit Board sets the policies nationally for the farm credit system, which is supervised by the Farm Credit Administration. The system includes 12 Federal Land Banks, 12 Federal Intermediate Credit Banks and 13 Banks for Cooperatives.

The Farm Credit Banks of St. Louis function in the Sixth District, which includes Arkansas, Missouri, and Illinois.

He is executive vice president and general manager of the Arkansas Rice Growers Cooperative association, Stuttgart, a position he has held since 1944. Carter is also general manager of the Arkansas Grain Corp. at Stuttgart.

Civil War--100 Years Ago

News, Views Century Ago

ROBBERY—On Sunday night last, some villain entered the house of Mr. Doty, on College avenue, and found his way to Mr. D's pants lying by his bedside, cut the pocket therefrom, which contained his pocket-book. After abstracting about four dollars he left the empty pocket-book on the window sill as he made his exit.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT—Capt. Horace Chapin, who lost a leg in the battle of Chancellorsville on the 20th of September, 1863, has been appointed Assistant U. S. Assessor, of the First Division of the Tenth District, and is already in the discharge of his duties. Office with Mr. Stacy. Capt. Chapin is highly competent and in every way worthy of this position.

RESOLUTIONS IN HONOR of President Lincoln were passed by the new Board of Town Trustees at their first meeting, expressing deep sorrow for the nation's loss and recommending that all houses in Jacksonville be closed and suitably draped in mourning on the day of his funeral, which will take place in Springfield, on Saturday, the 6th of May. The suggestion of the board that a meeting be held Saturday evening next, to make arrangements to attend the funeral, should be carried out.

The schedule was changed and Lincoln's body arrived over the Alton railroad Wednesday, May 3, and funeral services were held Thursday. Nobody can guess how many Morgan county people went to Springfield; the Wabash alone sold 3,025 tickets and hauled the passengers in everything from flat cars to box cars and coal cars. The local people found Springfield so packed that only relatively few were able to view the remains lying in state in the old capitol building in the center of the public square.

FATAL ACCIDENT—We learn that a Portuguese by the name of Emanuel Veiera fell from a wood train while it was in motion near Springfield last Saturday, the cars passing over both his legs, almost severing them from his body. He died Saturday night. Mr. Veiera was a resident of Jacksonville and leaves a wife and children to mourn his loss.

A GENEROUS OFFER—We learn that Wm. C. Woodman has generously offered to furnish mourning drapery for the day of the funeral services of Abraham Lincoln, in Springfield, free of charge, to all sincere sympathizers with the Government, who may feel unable to purchase it for themselves.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: A dispatch of last evening announces that a party of soldiers had over seen was the one on Caroline county, Va. He was on crutches from a broken limb, and resisting arrest, he was shot and killed.

The funeral cortege with remains of Mr. Lincoln is making a tour of the principal cities of the east, attended with great public demonstrations. It is expected to reach Springfield on next Wednesday, and the grand funeral ceremonies will take place on the following Thursday.

JACKSONVILLE MARKET—Shipments this week: 16 car loads of cattle, 6 car loads of hogs. Shippers paying this week for cattle $8 to $9; for hogs $7 to $7.50, a decline. No movement in grain.

From the Carrollton Gazette: OBSEQUIES—Appropriate ceremonies were had at the Baptist church in this place on Wednesday in pursuance of the order of the state departments in honor of the illustrious dead, and the business houses remained closed during the day. At the church which was densely crowded, after the singing of a dirge and prayer, suitable addresses were made by Hon. D. M. Woodson, Revs. Barton, Hyde, Kinney and Ward.

LUMBER YARD—J. L. Martin & Co. will establish their lumber yards on the street leading east from the north side of the public square, and on the lots nearly opposite the residence of John Rainey, Esq., where they contemplate having a generous assortment of lumber ready to supply the public demand by the 15th May next.

The work on our railroad has been pushed almost into town. The railroad company offers 50 to 60 cents for ties—a very liberal inducement—and we trust that our people will take steps to supply the road, and thus secure its earliest completion.

WEEKEND IN MICHIGAN—MEREDOSIA—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hadfield and daughter, Maybeth, accompanied by her parents, Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Murphy of Quincy left Friday for Detroit, Michigan, where they visited her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Murphy, Cindy, Linda, and Susan May. They returned home Monday.

A Famous Trademark Is Born

A hundred years ago the Morgan county boys in the 101st Infantry were looting around Durham's Station, N.C., a small hamlet that served as a wood and water stop for the North Carolina railroad. The town was six miles southeast of Bennett's farm, where Sherman and Johnston concluded their arrangements April 26.

Durham's Station was a no-man's land, where the Yanks and the Johnnies mingled to swap stories and horses, shoot at marks, bet on horse and foot races, and play chuck-a-luck.

They didn't know it, but they were participating in the most successful "free sample" advertising campaign ever conducted, one that turned the little tobacco mill run by John Ruffin Green into the world's greatest green tobacco factory.

The soldiers, both North and South, always picked up tobacco wherever they found it. If the soldier didn't smoke or chew that was O.K. too, for it was a mighty fine commodity to have on hand for trading purposes, just as it is in any war.

Green started his original factory in a two-story building not far from the railroad station in 1860. He dealt in only one item—granulated bright tobacco for smoking and by the time the war came around he had worked up a pretty fair local trade. The college boys at Chapel Hill twelve miles away were particularly partial to the Bright tobacco, which was lighter in color, milder in taste and easier on the tongue.

"Free Samples"—When the Union army arrived Green had his plant pretty well full of A-1 granulated tobacco, although he wasn't sure what he was going to do with it. The arrival of the Yanks and the Rebels settled that worry away—they just took it and puffed away.

The factory was empty when the boys left for home and discharge from the army. But within a few weeks the station agent and the postmaster at Durham's Station were getting letters from veterans and storekeepers inquiring who handled the tobacco and where it could be bought.

In just a little while Green's business was booming—and it kept right on growing through the years as the younger veterans took it with them when they went west. Out there it became a standard part of the cowboy's outfit.

From Mustard Jar—Green was advised by two new associates—William T. Blackwell and Julian Shakespear Carr—that his product should be trademarked, so he began studying on that. He thought the best trademark he had ever seen was the one on Coleman's mustard, which was manufactured in Durham, England, and featured the head of a Durham bull. Green also admired an imported Durham bull owned by a neighbor, so he named his tobacco "Durham's Bull."

And his customers promptly renamed it "Bull Durham."

Green and his associates were early developers of special machines to shred the tobacco, for making the cotton bags, for packing the granulated mixture in the bags, and for the labeling.

They were strong on advertising and were among the very first to regionalize their advertising. For instance, east of the Mississippi, the splendid bull was always pictured standing behind a fence; west of the river the fence was always in the background.

Should Credit "Bummers"—The tiny and sleepy hamlet of Durham became a bustling community and was called "The Chicago of the South."

The good sisters of the Daughters of the Southern Confederacy still bristle whenever they hear the word "Sherman," but the girls in North Carolina really should put up a monument to "The Bummers," who turned out to be the best tobacco salesmen the world has ever seen.

—Cecil Tendick

HUMORS of the day

A PRINTER'S TOAST—"Woman—the fairest work in creation. The edition is large and no man should be without a copy."

A married man, who was out at a whist party, when he proposed going home, was urged to stay a little longer. "Well," he replied, "perhaps I may as well; my wife, probably, is already as mad as she can be."

PRIZE-FIGHTERS, CLAM-EATERS, AND TURKS are all muskellmen. "Good morning, Mr. Jenkins, where have you kept yourself this long time?" "Kept myself," said Jenkins. "I don't keep myself, I live on credit."

DOMESTIC

Among the war material captured at Richmond were five guns of the Armstrong pattern, said to have been a present from the English Government to the Confederates, and had not yet been used. They are beautiful specimens of manufacture.

It is expected that before July 20 telegraphic communication will be established between Europe and America. Captain James Anderson, of the Cunard steamer "China," has been appointed to command the "Great Eastern" during the laying of the cable. That vessel will sail from Valencia, Ireland, about the 1st of July, and by the middle of that month will be due at Heart's Content, Trinity Bay.

MOURNING IN THE SOUTH—Roger A. Pryor stated in Petersburg that he believed Mr. Lincoln indispensable to the restoration of peace, and regretted his death more than any military mishap of the South. He and the Mayor placed themselves at the head of a movement for a town meeting to deplore the loss on both private and public grounds.

General Lee at Richmond at first refused to hear the details of the murder. Mr. A. Suite and another gentleman waited upon him on Sunday night with the particulars. He said that when he disposed himself of the command of the rebel force he kept in mind President Lincoln's benignity, and surrendered as much to Grant's goodness as to Grant's artillery. The General said he regretted Mr. Lincoln's death as much as any man in the North, and believed him to be the epitome of magnanimity and good faith.

Stocks of corn on farms April 1 totaled 1,897 million bushels. This amount was 13 percent less than last year, but only 5 percent less than the five-year 1959-63 average. The farm stocks are unevenly distributed. They are low in the borders of the Corn Belt, where drought cut yields last year, and large in the central area, where yields were high.

Needs For Corn—Our corn is used about as follows: fed to hogs, 38 percent; beef cattle, 13 percent; dairy cattle, 12 percent; poultry, 12 percent; and other livestock, 6 percent. Industrial uses take 6 percent and exports, 12 percent.

Hog production is down about 8 percent, so there is a corresponding cut in the use of corn for hog feed. About the same amount of corn may be used this year as last year for other livestock and by corn-using industries. The amount used for poultry feed and for export is expected to be a little larger during the remainder of this marketing year than last year.

From October 1 through March 26, corn exports totaled 248 million bushels, down 6 percent from the year before. Exports were stopped several weeks this past winter by the strike of dock workers. Except for that period, exports have been larger in this marketing year than in 1963-64. (The marketing year for corn begins October 1.)

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK LETTER

CORN PRICES TREND UPWARD—Corn prices have been acting as if they were "managed." Prices at Chicago went up about 5 cents a bushel from the first of the year to early April. This rise was just about enough to cover the costs of holding the corn. This same trend may continue during the next few months.

CCC Sales—Sales of corn by the Commodity Credit Corporation (USDA) have been an important factor in the market this year. From October 1 through March 26, the CCC sold 240 million bushels of corn, 111 percent more than in the same period a year before. More than 84 percent of the amount sold was for domestic use; only 16 percent was for export.

The lowest allowable sale price for CCC corn for unrestricted use is the loan rate plus a 1½-cent increase for each month after last October. Actual prices have been slightly above this minimum.

CCC Stocks—The CCC still has a large supply of corn, estimated at 643 million bushels on March 26. This amount was 15 percent less than the year before. It does not include corn that is under price support and resale loans.

To March 1 farmers had repaid loans on 7 million bushels. A year earlier they had repaid loans on 5 million bushels.

Corn Under Resale Loans—The amount of corn under resale loans on March 1 totaled 441 million bushels, practically the same as a year earlier. In each case the corn under resale was from four different crops. The amount of corn owned by the CCC, plus that under price support, totaled 1,284 million bushels. This was 16 percent less than the corresponding amount a year earlier.

Weatherman Smiles—And So Do Farmers

The farmers of west central Illinois swung into action last week, as the temperatures zoomed and fields became dry enough to work.

For many farmers it was the first time they had been able to get into their fields this year. But they were all poised to go, and a tremendous amount of work was accomplished in the final three days of the week.

The smallest crop of oats in the history of Morgan and surrounding counties is assured. Nobody intended to plant many of them in the first place and the persistent wet weather has changed the pattern, acres that had been intended for oats will be put in soybeans.

All fertilizer people reported very busy times last week and a record use of plant nutrients undoubtedly will be set this season.

Quite a bit of plowing was done during the week, but despite the lateness of the season very few farmers are in any trouble on this point. There was a great deal of ground plowed last fall, in some cases everything except the backyard was turned over last October and November.

This serious shortage of soil moisture resulting from the drought of last summer and fall has been corrected. This is true all over the state. Early last fall reporters for the Illinois Cooperative Crop Reporting Service found a shortage of soil moisture in 77% of the state, about normal in 11% and surplus only in the extreme northeastern section of the state.

Last week the same men described soil moisture as adequate in 48% of the state, surplus in 49% and short in only 3%. This section of the state received more moisture by the 15th of the month than is normal for the entire month. Peoria county is the wet one now, with a total of nearly 17 inches of precipitation this year, about twice the normal for the period.

Winter wheat is showing good color and rapid growth and its condition is considered good to excellent. Pastures are a little behind schedule, but also show good color and growth and with a few more days of warm weather will make fantastic progress.

This week promises to be a busy one for farmers—and for all who supply them with what they need.

not include corn that is under price support and resale loans. To March 1, farmers had placed 201 million bushels of new-crop corn under price support. This amount was 44 percent less than they had placed under price support a year earlier.

By March 1 farmers had repaid loans on 7 million bushels. A year earlier they had repaid loans on 5 million bushels.

Corn Under Resale Loans—The amount of corn under resale loans on March 1 totaled 441 million bushels, practically the same as a year earlier. In each case the corn under resale was from four different crops. The amount of corn owned by the CCC, plus that under price support, totaled 1,284 million bushels. SOME MORE AVERAGES!
Net income per Illinois farm in 1964 averaged $4,676.00, down 4% from the figure for 1963 according to figures released last month. Declines in wheat, corn and soybean receipts more than offset increased government payments and cattle receipts and slightly lower production expenses. Total farm income for Illinois in 1964 was $2,317,543,000.00, down 2% from 1963.

Iowa State Economists predict that by 1975 about 10% more pork will be needed than was produced in the past three years. Consumption per person will drop a bit but not enough to offset population gain—and improving quality will help pork compete with other meats. Presently one-third of the hogs graded are sold as hogs, the rest as meat.

They had gathered in the golden living room—Clay and Cynthia, David and Diane, Clay had phoned Diane and her father as soon as he had reached home. David had detached himself from Sara with the same handy excuse he had used before: a house call.

Diane had come with the explanation that Larry had gone to the beach without her; she had begged off pleading a headache. She really had one and looked it. Listening to Clay's account, they had all felt weights dropping off them.

Diane, giving her father a long look, had said, "That'll teach you to doubt your only child."

"That'll teach you to be so soft-hearted," he had retorted. "The story you told us will have to come out at the trial. You'd better tell it to Larry in a hurry, every bit of it. If your marriage survives that, I'll survive almost anything else."

"I'll let you know," Diane had answered quietly.

It was odd, they had so much to talk about, yet they had come to a moment when there seemed nothing more to say.

The chiming sounded as she spoke. Clay opened the door. It was Barcello.

He looked at them all without smiling. "The investigation is finished, of course. I ought to be happy about it. But I'm not entirely, because there is still punishment."

"But surely," Cynthia said, "Myra won't be blamed too much."

"That's for the jury to decide," Clay wasn't mollified by Barcello's conciliatory manner. "You made yourself a one-man jury you know. And you nearly brought in the wrong verdict."

Barcello shook his head. "On the contrary, Mr. Beldoni, I didn't bring in any verdict at all. That was my problem."

"It wasn't you I was trying to help," Clay said. "Chiefly it was my wife."

"I know, and that was the whole point. There were alternatives in the question of guilt, but I had no way of separating them. No direct way, that is. You all put up a wall of concealment against me. You all seemed to be protecting someone among you. I was having you all watched, you know—then and today also—and when Dr. Tancred came here last night, then Mrs. Carlson, and you all went into a long huddle. It told me you all knew a great deal of what I needed to find out, if not everything. I also knew you'd never tell me unless I put pressure on you—pressure to the breaking point."

"That you did," Clay said on a grim note.

"The fact that Mr. Gould and Dr. Tancred were at the motel near the same time simply could not be a coincidence. It had to be that Dr. Tancred went because Mr. Gould was there. It also had to be that your wife had gone there with either Mr. Gould or Dr. Tancred. Although the two cars were not quite the same color, they seemed to be the same in dim light. To tell it down as Dr. Tancred was accompanied by your wife then the other woman the woman with Mr. Gould had to be someone Dr. Tancred wished desperately to protect. There was only one possibility his daughter.

"You forced me to think it out all right I sifted through all the impossibilities and went to work on the least impossible. Mrs. Gould's alibi was false and you broke through it with the advantage of a personal relationship. I faced a strong disadvantage there—as an agent of retribution, if I can be called that—fear. You could do for me something I couldn't do for myself—point out the right woman among the three. Can you understand my handling of the case now, Mr. Beldoni?"

"I can understand it without liking it," Clay said. "What you did to my wife was brutal."

"I admit it was. But what if I hadn't done it? Then you wouldn't have exerted your self and we still wouldn't have the answer. We might never have had it, and all you would have gone on living in the shadow of an unsolved case. An ugly prospect, certainly one to be avoided if possible—and since you all prevented me from solving the case myself, I had to force you into a position where you'd have to solve it for me."

Clay suddenly relented. "I can still object to your methods, but not to the results."

"Then we're all satisfied—except that you're much more satisfied than I am. Barcello did not clarify the remark in words, but he turned away abruptly as if embarrassed by a deep injury to his pride, a hurt none of them could really understand. "Adios!"

Opening lead—♠ 3

This hand from England is a real gem. East's double of four clubs was rather questionable and if West had led a club against the spade slam it would have made the play a cinch but West made the brilliant opening lead of his singleton trump.

East took his ace and led a second trump which was won in dummy. At this point if you look at all the cards you may not see how South made the hand but he did and there was no defense to beat him.

The key was in that double of four clubs. Declarer led dummy's king of clubs and East covered. Now declarer ruffed and simply ran off all his trumps.

This brought everyone down to five cards. Dummy held three hearts, a diamond and the jack of clubs. West was down to the queen of clubs and four red cards. He elected to keep three hearts and one diamond while East hung on to three diamonds and two hearts.

Now all South had to do was to cash his two good diamonds and West was squeezed in hearts and clubs.

If West had elected to unguard hearts and hold diamonds, East would have been able to guard the hearts but would have had to unguard the diamonds whereupon declarer would have led a heart to dummy's king and chased the ace to squeeze poor West between diamonds and that same queen of clubs.

What do you do?

A—Bid four hearts. If your partner wants to go on you have good strength in both his suits.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner continues to four spades. What do you do now?

Jacks Sweep 4-Team Meet

Then Jacksonville Crimsoms captured another thirteenth victory Friday afternoon as they ran away from a field of four squads, amassing a total of 117 points to the 73 point tally for runner-up North Greene. ISD placed third in the competition with 17, while Northwestern scored two.

The hosts-winners collected firsts in nine of the 15 events, augmented by 10 seconds, five thirds, seven fourths and three fifths place finishes. Splitting individual winner honors between the two top finalists, North Greene topped the remaining six firsts in the afternoon's competition.

Two dual champions were crowned in the meet, both from Jacksonville. Dennis Sergeant took wins in both the 180 low hurdles, while Bob Donovan held the winning times in the half and mile runs. In the mile event, the Crimsoms grabbed the first four slots, headed by Donovan and Dave Barnes.

As has been the practice in the past, the Crimsoms swept all three relay events in the meet. The frosh-soph quintet of Jim Bruner, Art McKee, Benny Richardson and Abe Brown were clocked in the half mile event at 1:40.2, 9/10 of a second slower than their record setting time of 1:39.3 in last Thursday's meet.

In later action, Bruner and McKee teamed up with Frank Wildhagen and Dennis Portee to capture the varsity 880 action with a time of 1:37.1, while Barnes, Brown, Harry Gollier and Jim Stone took the mile relay in 3:53.0.

Other Crimsoms victors included Mike Matijevich in the discus and Steve Tavender in the 120 high hurdles. Matijevich also gained a second in the shot put competition.

North Greene's Jim Piper was the only other double winner in the meet, as he recorded victories in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Cards Drop Reds 6-3, Flood Raps

CINCINNATI (AP) — Curt Flood slammed a leadoff homer and a two-run single in the fifth inning in support of Bob Gibson's pitching, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-3 victory over Cincinnati Friday night.

Also collecting two hits each for the Cardinals were second baseman Phil Gagliano and right fielder Tito Francona, inserted into the line-up by Manager Red Schoendienst to try and add some punch to the world champions' attack. Gagliano scored two runs while Francona scored one and drove in one.

Flood's key single capped a three-run fifth inning rally against loser John Tsiouris that put the game out of reach. The blow scored Gagliano and Tim McCarver, who had singled.

Gibson, beating the Reds for the second time this season, gave up two runs in Cincinnati's half of the fifth on a walk, Tommy Harper's single and a double by Gordy Coleman. But he allowed only one other hit the rest of the way, completing a six-hitter.

Minnesota Edges Tigers In Tenth

DETROIT (AP) — The Minnesota Twins scored two runs in the 10th inning on one hit, Jerry Zimmerman's tie-breaking single, and defeated Detroit 8-6 Friday night.

Harmon Killebrew and Jimmie Hall started the Twins off in the 10th by drawing walks off Julio Navarro, then Zimmerman singled for the lead run. Hall scored when Jerry Lumpe misjudged Cesar Tovar's pop up and it hit him in the face.

Minnesota had fought back after spotting the Tigers five runs in the first inning and tied the game with two runs in the eighth on singles by Tony Oliva, Killebrew and Earl Battey and an infield out.

The Tigers picked up five singles—only one of which was hit out of the infield—and a walk to chase Minnesota starter Jim Grant in the opening inning.

Al Kaline homered for the Tigers in the seventh.

The Illini scored twice in the first inning on a walk to Dan Humay, singles by Jim Vopicka and Jerry Szukala and a pop fly by Norm Schleuter that dropped in for a hit.

They tallied two more in the second inning on an error, Trenton Jackson's single, another error and a single by Humay, and added another in the fifth on a walk and two straight errors by shortstop Lee Endsley.

Mac Spring Sport Teams Below Par

As the halfway mark in the Spring Sport season approach, a look at the MacMurray squads shows disappointing but not tragic results for the baseball, golf, and tennis teams.

Coach Bill Wall's diamond-men currently post a 4-8 record, with four of the losses coming by the margin of one run, usually scored in the late innings. The baseball team has received excellent pitching from the current four man staff, headed up by Tom Styzen of Chicago.

Styzen's 2-3 record includes victories over St. Louis U. and Illinois College as well as heart-breaking one-run losses to Arkansas AM & N and Loyola of New Orleans. The veteran right-hander boasts a 3.17 ERA for his five games.

Other members of the mound corps include sophomores Bob Gay, of Gary, Ind., 1-1 for the year with an ERA of 2.17, and Randy Rose, of Rushville, also 1-1 for the season. Freshman Dave Berst, of Carbondale, is 0-3 thus far.

The Clan has shown a good solid defense, but is sorely lacking in hitting, managing where the Clan linksters found only a .160 team batting average through the first nine games.

Leading the Clan at the bat has been senior Howie Curtis of plate so far is Gay, with a .273 batting average from 6 hits in 22 at-bats. Close behind is freshman Tom Cochran, of Springfield, batting .259 with 7 hits in 27 at-bats.

The Highlanders showed some week.

Greenville Bombs Blueboy Nine 13-1

GREENVILLE — The I.C. Blueboys were the victims of a two big Greenville innings here Friday afternoon, as the hosts dropped their conference foes by a 13-1 tally. Shortstop Dave Herron powered the Greenville assault, collecting a double and a home run good for five runs driven in. Herron cleaned the bases with his dual-safety in the six run fourth, and drove home teammate Jim Jackson with his round tripper in the seventh.

The Blueboys collected their solo tally in the top of the first on successive singles by Bob Rittenhouse, Jim Downer and Bob Jenkins, but Greenville starter Tom Carlson soon shut the door, scattering four hits over the remaining eight innings.

Rigney Gets Day Off From Duties After Rainout

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Rigney had barely gotten into his baseball uniform Friday when word came that the game between his Los Angeles Angels and the New York Yankees had been postponed because of the rain.

"Okay, fellows," said the gray-haired pilot of the Angels, "now we can talk. I don't have to do any managing today."

Rigney laughed although there didn't appear to be anything funny in what he said. "That's an inside joke," he explained. "You know, our club never seems to have an easy game. Last year, for example, 63 of our games were decided by one run and 54 by two."

"On the way to the park, I told my guys, 'Let's see if you can get me about eight runs.' Somebody cracked. 'You wouldn't know how to manage with all those runs.'"

Rigney's Angels have won only three of their seven games but never has he been so enthusiastic about any team he's ever managed.

"Sure, I think we've got a better team than last year," he said. "But it's more than that. What delights me so much is our youth."

"They're calling 'em the Kidie Korps. The oldest of my four regular starters is Dean Chance. And he's 23. Fred Newman is six months younger. Marcelino Lopez and Rudy May are 21 and 20, respectively. Show me a starting staff that's younger."

Three of the eight regulars, other than pitchers, are rookies; barely past the voting age. Costen Shockley, who is currently being platooned with veteran Joe Adcock at first base, is the oldest at 23. Third baseman Paul Schaal is 22 and center fielder Jose Cardenal 21.

Roberts Slugs Orioles To 4-2 Edge Over Bosox

BALTIMORE (AP) — Robin Roberts drove in three Baltimore runs with a bases-loaded double in the second inning and pitched the Orioles to a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox Friday night.

The 38-year-old right-hander was in trouble throughout but outdueled 22-year-old Jim Lonborg, making his first major league start for Boston.

Lonborg walked three Orioles before Roberts cleared the bases with his drive down the left field line. Jerry Adair scored the third run with a well-executed fallaway slide which enabled him to elude the tag attempt by catcher Bob Tillman.

Lonborg, with only one year of minor league experience, allowed only one other Baltimore hit before he was removed for a pinch hitter in the sixth inning.

Cater Blasts Lead Sox, 5-3

WASHINGTON (AP) — Danny Cater's two-run homer capped a three-run sixth inning upping that carried the Chicago White Sox to a 5-3 victory over Washington Friday night.

The White Sox, trailing 3-2 going into the sixth, tied the score against reliever Steve Riddick on a walk to Ron Hansen. Don Buford's pinch-hit single and a grounder by Smoky Burgess.

Cater, whose batting average had dipped below .500 when he went hitless in his first three trips, then put the White Sox ahead to stay with his homer.

Riddick had replaced Pete Richter when the Washington starter had to leave the game after being bruised on the right knee by a smash off the bat of Pete Richter.

NHL Playoffs Are No Longer Peaceful Games

CHICAGO (AP) — When the Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens qualified for the finals of the Stanley Cup championship, peace-loving enthusiasts throughout the National Hockey League were overjoyed.

At last there was to be a championship playoff between two smooth-skating teams who have little or no animosity towards each other.

That's the way it was in the first game, Montreal won 3-2. Neither team showed any spark. The Canadiens turned on the speed in Game 2 and won it 2-0. The Hawks played the role of lambs.

But everything changed Thursday night in Chicago when the Black Hawks took a 3-1 decision to get back into contention in the best-of-7 series.

Chicago resorted to muscle and the Canadiens refused to back off. The result was a rough, tough contest. Not a minute passed in which someone wasn't being rattled off the boards.

Fights broke out on the ice and the game ended with Canadian players battling with noisy and inebriated Chicago fans.

The fourth game will be played in Chicago Sunday night with game No. 5 in Montreal Tuesday. If more than five games are necessary, No. 6 will be played in Chicago next Thursday and the seventh game in Montreal May 1.

SET OLYMPIC EXPENSES
NEW YORK (AP) — It will take $2.7 million to finance the United States Olympic program during the next four years, the executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee said Friday.

"We feel that the undertaking will be just as heavy as the four years pointing to the games at Tokyo," J. Lyman Bingham added.

Bingham made the statement at a luncheon at which a drug and chemical company, Chas. Pfizer & Co., presented the USOC with a $1,000 check.

Routt's Dennis Bennett rounds 3rd and goes on to score in the Rockets' seventh-inning Friday afternoon. Bennett walked to open the inning and scored Mike Fitzpatrick's single. Virginia finally edged the Rockets, 9-8.

Creston Whitaker is definitely going to attend Southern Illinois University this next fall, on a full basketball scholarship.

The Jacksonville hardcourt ace signed a work scholarship Thursday and returned it to SIU.

Whitaker will receive all expenses for room, board and tuition, plus monthly spending money, all taken care of in his work scholarship.

Whitaker talked to head basketball coach Jack Hartman several times before making his decision to enroll at Southern.

Koufax Emerges From 2nd Effort In Good Shape

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southpaw pitcher Sandy Koufax apparently emerged from his second winning effort for the Los Angeles Dodgers with no ill after-effects to his famed throwing elbow.

Sandy, as is his custom, made himself unavailable to the press, the public and the ball club itself until Friday night's game with the Philadelphia Phillies.

But the office of Dr. Robert Kerlan, Koufax's physician, had received no distress signal Friday from him and hopefully assumed everything was all right.

Koufax pitched the full nine innings for the second time this season as the Dodgers edged out the New York Mets 2-1 Thursday night. He held the Mets to four hits, struck out nine and gave up only one base on balls.

"I feel better now than the last time," Koufax said. "I never feel anything until the next day. But now I think I'm really on my way."

"I guess if I were to go out and win about five or six in a row people would stop talking so much about my elbow. Actually, this thing isn't that bad, anyway. If it starts to bother me, I can get medication and have the problem cleared up in three or four days."

Virginia Slips By Rocket Nine, 9-8

9-8 PMSC loss, Friday afternoon at Nichols Park, dampening the locals' hopes in the conference standings.

Routt came from a 6-1 deficit with a seven-run uprising on only four hits and four free passes in the sixth, to take an 8-6 margin. Three Routt errors in the decisive 6th paved the way to the winning margin.

The Rockets were guilty of seven blunders in all, but Virginia pounded out nine hits off three Routt hurlers, including a three-run roundtripper by Redbird shortstop Ronnie Baptist, in the third.

The loss leaves both Routt and Virginia with two PMSC losses, while both Charlottesville and Portia have been beaten only once in the five-game league schedule.

Virginia broke the scoring ice with a big five-run third inning. Two straight Rocket errors set the stage for Baptist's three-run sock over the leftfield fence at Nichols. Steve Larsen and Scotty Anderson followed with singles, and starting pitcher Steven Graves chased Routt's hurler Kevin Hunter with another single, scoring the fourth run.
